Smog Poses Threat

NEW YORK AP - The New York metropolitan area lay under a blanket of polluted air again today and officials warned persons with heart and respiratory ailments to stay indoors. A forecast of wind and possible rain promised relief, however.

The index of air pollution was about 3-1/2 times the normal level as the sun rose through a dismal haze today. But the measurement showed a drop from the critical level reached Thursday night.

Any deaths attributed to the smog would not be reported for a few days. A 10-day period of stagnant air in November 1963 was blamed for from 170 to 260 deaths.

The pollution, which began to increase Wednesday night, was attributed to a massive temperature inversion hanging over the middle Atlantic coast. The inversion occurs frequently in the late fall, when warm air overrides and imprisons surface air.

Eustin N. Heller, city commissioner of air pollution control, said an air pollution reading of 60.6, five times the average level of 12, was registered at 8 p.m. Thursday, indicating an amount he said may have been the city's highest in history.

It dropped to 18.5 in the predawn hours, and had risen to 43.2 at the height of the commuter rush this morning when streets and parkways were jammed with vehicular traffic and incinerators were being lit. An air temperature of about 60 was expected.

The pollution count, based on a statistical measurement of sulphur dioxice and carbon dioxide in the air, indicates the amount of harmful substances in the atmosphere. The level considered dangerous is 50.

Heavy pollution was reported in Philadelphia and Boston, where sulphur dioxide in the air reached six times the normal level Thursday. Weather bureaus in both cities predicted there was a chance of relief today or Saturday.

At the smog's height in New York, Heller said he was "very, very close" to calling an air pollution alert which, if put into effect, could have closed some industries and kept cars from the streets.

New York residents had been asked not to burn leaves and the city requested two major power companies to use natural gas at their plants instead of fuel oil. All municipal incinerators were shut down.

Tax Institute Set for Dec. 7

The 1966 farm income tax institute for tax practitioners and others will be held Dec. 7 at the Holiday Inn.

Persons attending in the past two years have been mailed a letter and registration form for enrolling.

Others may register at the University extension center in Benton.

The program will convene at 8 a.m. and adjourn at 4:10 p.m. It is necessary to register in advance in order to be assured a place.

Fat Girls May Be Victims of Prejudice

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. AP -- Fat high school pupils, especially girls, are discriminated against by college admissions officials, reports the Harvard School of Public Health.

The prejudice is shared by high school teachers who recommend students for college, a Harvard report says.

"It is probably that this prejudice is entirely unconscious," the researchers said in a report published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Prof. Jean Mayer and a senior research assistant in nutrition, Helen Canning, felt there were fewer obese students in the prestige colleges than in public high schools.

To check their observations they chose a large, middle-class suburban high school and freshman classes at an Ivy League school and one of the Ivy League "sister schools."

They said they found the obese high school pupils to be as well - qualified and just as interested in going to college as slim students.

But, they said, there were twice as many obese girls in the high schools as in the colleges. For boys, there were one-third to one - half more obese pupils in the high schools.

Two - thirds more of the slim girls went on to college, they reported.

"I think this is what happens," Prof. Mayer said. "An admissions officer looks at an obese girl applying to college during an interview and says to herself. "This girl won't fit in at Wellesley."

Mayer said he was using Wellesley symbolically, that he meant colleges in general.

The researchers said while their study was confined to high - ranking colleges, they believe "a similiar type of discrimination operates in the admission procedures of lesser ranking colleges."

Grand Jury Probe Begins In Alleged Casino Rakeoffs

By Robert M. Shaw

LAS VEGAS, NEV. (AP) - Nevada gamblers and state gaming agency officials are expected to testify in a federal grand jury investigation beginning today into alleged casino rakeoffs in the nation's gambling capital.

The grand jury is to hear information from an Internal Revenue Service investigation of claims that gamblers "skim" profits from the tops of their multimillion-dollar casino tills and hide them from taxmen.

The state officials will be among the first to testify. But indications are that they will not appear until Monday. Names of the state officials and gamblers summoned to the hearing were not revealed.

The initial purpose of the grand jury will be to "determine if casinos have reported their full income," said U.S. Atty. Joseph Ward.

The FBI has claimed that money from "skimming" is funneled into the underworld of Chicago, Cleveland, and Miami. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has said Nevada's legalized gambling "occupies a position of major importance in the scheme or organized crime and racketeering."

Ward said the investigation at the start would not involve allegations of underworld connections.

Officials refused to speculate on whether any FBI evidence might be tainted because it was admittedly gathered by electronic eavesdropping in at least one casino on the Las Vegas strip.

The IRS was expected to claim it was unaware of the FBI eavesdropping and that its tax information was not gathered through "bugging."

Nevada's Gaming Control Board and parent Gaming Commission held closed-door hearings into the FBI claims in August.

Gaming Board Chairman Edward A. Olsen said the hearing uncovered no evidence of substantial rakeoffs or of any underworld connections.

Under Olsen's direction, undercover agents from the state gambled at the tables posing as tourists - and counted the casino profit made from all gamblers at each table.

Olsen said the agents counted a cash drop of $1,326,424.

"This contrasted with a drop of $1,302,196 reported - by the casinos - on the same tables, for a deficit of $24,228 or 1.8 per cent," Olsen said.

"The limited scope of the sampling, coupled with the leeway for human error in these undercover tallies, could well account for this minimal discrepancy," he said.

Correction

Two of the leaders attending a St. Johns Bayou and St. James watershed meeting were listed erroneously as being in the front row of a picture in Wednesday's Daily Standard. They were Lloyd Hall, East Prairie and Gilbert Bryant, Charleston. Both were in the back row.

Dialers to Add Digit

Beginning Thursday it will be necessary for Sikeston telephone customers to dial the numeral 1 before dialing station-to-station long distance calls, John Donoho, manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, announced.

This change is a result of new equipment in the telephone office capable of handling telephone service expansion, Donoho said.

"Starting Dec. 1, when a Sikeston customer wishes to place a station-to-station long distance call," Donoho explained, "he will dial the numeral 1 first, then the area code and the telephone number he is calling."

There will be no change in dialing local or other long distance calls.

"Detailed instructions concerning Numeral 1 dialing will be mailed to Sikeston telephone customers before Dec. 1," Donoho said.

Numeral 1 dialing is a standard nation-wide procedure in the Bell system. Many Missouri exchanges already use this dialing plan. Numeral 1 dialing instructions will be in the new Sikeston telephone directory to be delivered by Thursday.

Fines Levied At New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Things were quieter in Judge Erie Wright's magistrate court this week than they have been for a long time, according to Mrs. Lorene Thompson, chief clerk. Four cases appeared on the record. Three persons paid fines for speeding and two for failure to have an operator's license.

Joel A. Inkle and Wayne Bagley each paid $15 fines for speeding and John L. Davis and Alice Faye Peterson fined for failure to have an operator's li[illegible].

$268 Taken From Station

HAYTI - Police reported that one man was taken before the Pemiscot county prosecuting attorney for investigation of money stolen from the Dawson Service Station.

The man is being held after $268 was taken from the station while an attendant on duty was outside the station.

The money was found to be missing Thursday morning.

Real Estate Course Offered

A meeting to organize a course in rural real estate appraisal will be held Wednesday at 7:30 in the First National Bank's community room. Residents of New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and Mississippi may take it.

This is a three hour college credit course from the University of Missouri Agricultural economics department in Columbia.

The classes will meet for at least 10 weeks, four hours a week.

Real estate people, insurance agents, bankers, farmers and other interested persons are asked to be present to register Wednesday night.

There is a requirement of 20 enrollees for the course.

Dr. Frank Miller, professor emeritus at the University of Missouri in agricultural economics and land economist, will teach the course.

Cong Forces Routed

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Two Vietnamese irregular companies and their U. S. "Green Beret" Special Forces advisers came out on top tonight in heavy combat with a Communist force in the tangled jungles of War Zone C, an American command stokesman announced.

A U. S. Army company linked up with the 240 or so irregulars he said, and "the Viet Cong fled." There was no final report of casualties on either side, though initial advices were that allied losses were light.

American artillery and air strikes had pounded the Communist troops in the action, in Tay Ninh Province nine miles northeast of Tay Ninh City and about 45 miles northwest of Saigon.

North Vietnamese troops wiped out a similar Vietnamese force in the same region a month ago.

The Tay Ninh action was the most spectacular ground contact in a day which saw U.S. 1st Cavalry Division troops chase the Viet Cong up river valleys of the central coast in Binh Dinh Province while 25 Division infantrymen scoured caves in the highlands and found numerous graves.

U. S. Air Force and Navy planes were beset by heavy weather over North Viet Nam for the eighth day in a row Thursday, but chalked up a total of 101 missions.

U. S. Marine Corps planes were active in South Viet Nam, flying a record 257 sorties against Viet Cong targets, mainly in support of ground operations in the vicinity of the demilitarized zone between the two Viet Nams.

Details were sparse on the Vietnamese strike force action in Tay Ninh province. But at midafternoon the force was reported still heavily engaged and had suffered light casualties at that point.

The battle area was in deep jungle. U. S. infantrymen are operating in the same region, and preparations were being made to rush reinforcements into the fight.

U. S. officials, meanwhile, untangled the confusion surrounding the Thanksgiving Day ambush of an American civilian-military convoy on Highway 11 south of Dalat.

Final casualty figures announced today were one U.S. military man killed and six wounded, one U. S. civilian killed, one Canadian civilian killed, four Koreans killed, one Filipino killed and one Vietnamese killed.

One U.S. civilian and a Canadian, a Korean and Vietnamese also were wounded.

The new official figures were much lower than the 20 reported killed and 10 wounded announced on Thanksgiving Day. A spokesman said one military water truck and two Page Communications Engineering Inc., vans were destroyed, and three Page vans seriously damaged.

First Cavalry troops, following up a successful action Thanksgiving Day in which they killed 30 Viet Cong along the central coast and captured 11, struck out along the base of the An Loa Valley today, making occasional contact.

The Thanksgiving Day action involved two companies of ca-

Police Make Two Arrests

Two arrests were made by the police over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Michael A. Cox, Perkins, charged with driving while intoxicated, posted bond of $56; Mary Turner, 112 Luther, charged with peace disturbance.

Injuries Fatal To Texas Man

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Joe Lynn Newell, 30, Irving, Tex., died Thursday at a Cape Girardeau hospital from injuries sustained in a one car accident Nov. 12.

He was injured when his car ran off the road and hit a tree north of Marble Hill. He suffered a crushed chest and fractured skull and never regained consciousness.

The body was taken to Cracraft - Miller Funeral Home at Jackson.

The highway patrol said 128 persons have been killed on Southeast Missouri highways this year compared to 160 at this time last year.

Trapped Fumes Released

SCRANTON, Pa. AP - There was no long holiday weekend for those drilling holes in the streets of South Scranton, searching for an underground mine fire that has filled homes in the area with deadly carbon-monoxide fumes.

Men stood by rotary drills throughout Thanksgiving Day and into today, punching holes in the earth they hope will "bleed off" the fumes rising from the subsurface fires

Mayor James J. Walsh said holes would be drilled until the fire is pinpointed and every effort made to extinguish the blaze that has forced evacuation of some two dozen families. Walsh said this could mean drilling 120 holes.

In the past 48 hours 10 holes were drilled in the continuous effort to get to the source and allow the fumes to escape.

Police and National Guard troops roped off an eight-block section of this city in Pennsylvania's anthracite region to guard against looting at homes evacuated after the fumes began rising during the past week. Health officials have declared at least four houses "unfit for human habitation."

The fire is in abandoned mines under Scranton.

There have been no deaths resulting from the current outbreak of fumes, authorities said.

The mayor said the holes drilled so far have not reached the fire. However, the holes, which go to a depth of 126 feet, are allowing bottled-up fumes to escape into the air. The holes are about 25 inches in diameter.

About 20 National Guard troops were called in by Gov. William W. Scranton. A team of 36 firemen trained in gas detection is working "around the clock" to test for fumes, Walsh said.

Vandals Damage Buildings

Vandals damaged a storage building of the John Deere Farm Equipment Co., 130 South Kingshighway, over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Manager L. A. Schurerenberg found 18 window panes in the storage building had been broken. Rocks and empty paint cans were thrown into the building as well as through another window in the main building.

Names of several youths have been turned over to police after they were caught handling new equipment in a storage lot, starting motors, and taking parts from farm vehicles.

Fifteen Treated For Injuries

Fifteen persons were treated for minor injuries in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital, Wednesday and Thursday:

Lloyd Thieret Jr., injured neck while stacking food cartons at McKnight-Keaton; Dwan Cathey, mashed end of right index finger under airpress at work; Deanna Parsons, Charleston, fell on steps at home and injured knee; Patricia Graviett, Oran, injured in fall at work at Anchor Toy; Harvey Spencer, Canalou, cut on forehead at Hart's Bakery; Janice Holifield, Morehouse, injured in truck accident near Morehouse.

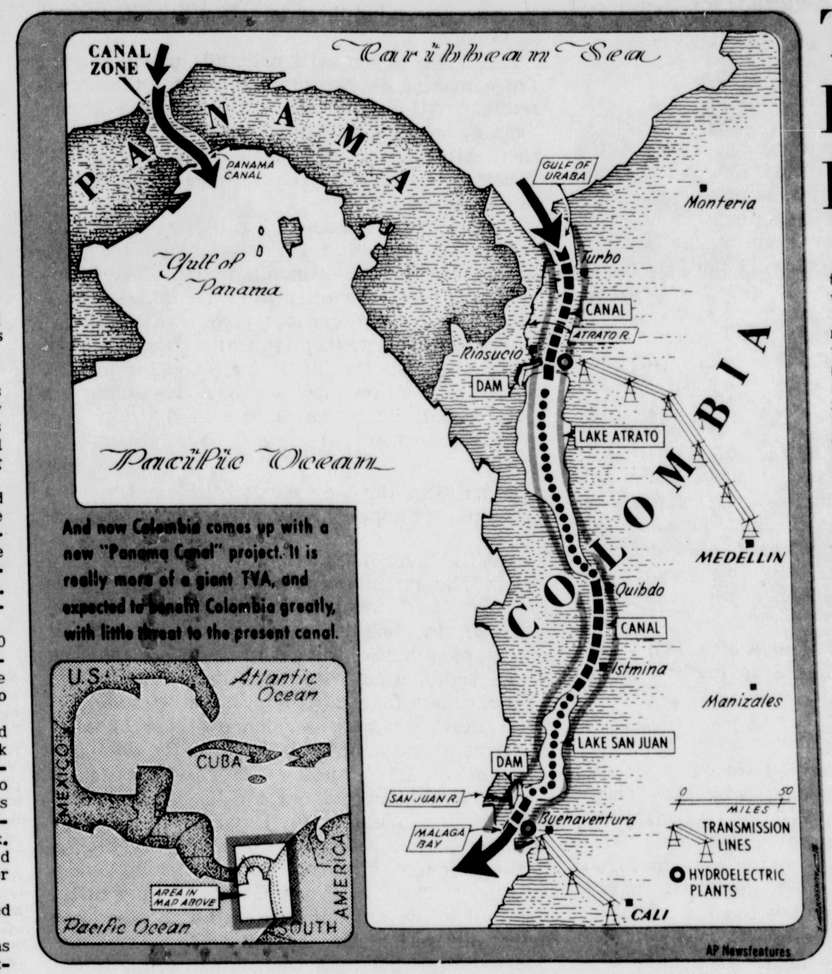
Police Look for Stolen Hardtop

Police were notified to be on the look out for a beige 1959 two - door Ford hardtop, stolen in Osceola, Ark., and believed being driven toward Illinois.

The report was received today at 5:30 a.m.

A one - armed right- handed pitcher, Hugh Daly, won 74 games and lost 88 between 1882 - 87. He pitched a 1-0 no - hitter for Cleveland against Philadelphia in 1883.



Colombian Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government of Colombia has unveiled plans, still in a preliminary stage, for a development of huge proportions.

They include the building of a ship canal, 260 miles long, between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, not as a competitor of the Panama Canal but for movement of Colombia's coffee and other exports, and for small ships going to and from South America's west coast.

But the canal is only one aspect of the gigantic plan which Colombians envision as a producer of hydroelectric power and the industrial, agricultural and social advancement of a big area of northern Colombia.

The plan resembles somewhat a miniature TVA.

The waterway, with twin locks at either end, would be along a route from the Gulf of Uraba, on the Carribbean Sea just below the Panama-Colombia border, southward to a lake formed by damming the Atrato River, and westward to the Pacific in the vicinity of Buenaventura.

Actually, the creation of two great lakes is proposed, one formed by the San Juan River in the west and the other by the Atrato in northern Colombia. The lakes would be joined by a 30-mile ship channel, 328 feet wide, 39 feet deep, costing an estimated $150 million.

Similar channels, one 34 miles long at the north, and another 4.5 miles long at the south, would be built to lead to the oceans.

The Atrato lake would be 120 miles long and almost 30 miles wide at its broadest point. The San Juan lake would be 69 miles long and about 9 miles at its widest point.

Like TVA, which depends heavily on sales of electric power for its income, the Colombian project would be pegged to two hydroelectric plants, one at the dam on the San Juan River, with a capacity of 800,000 kilowatts and the other at the Atrato dam, with a capacity of 2.5 million kilowatts.

Early estimates say the canal itself, one of the most spectacular features of the Colombian plan, would not alone pay out, but that power revenues would meet entire costs of the project in a few years.

Colombian officials hasten to explain that the canal would not be in serious competition with the Panama Canal, nor of the sea level waterway the United States is considering at some point in Middle America.

Experts here agree. They say the waterway would be too small to handle ships above 20,000 tons, and that the current trend is for much larger ships, especially tankers. In addition, they estimate the Colombian route would take about two days' more for vessels on normal trade routes. In effect, the canal will be more in the nature of an inland waterway for local purposes.

One route being considered by U.S. experts for the sea level canal is in Colombia, about 20 miles north of the Atrato River, and would take the shortest route across the country - 95.4 miles. The Panama Canal is 50 miles long, U.S. experts estimated the cost of a seal level waterway across Colombia at about $1.2 billion.

The first estimate on cost of the entire Colombian project, including power facilities, was $743 million. Engineers conceded, however, that much more detailed studies will have to be made.

The two projects are not identical. The U.S. plan calls for a waterway to be dug for the entire route, and kept within a channel adequate for maritime safety, not spreading out over a wide area, as would the Colombian project. The Colombian plans call for damming two rivers to form lakes furnishing 189 of the 260 miles of the proposed canal.

There is widespread speculation here that Colombia is not a likely choice for the U.S. sea level canal. Three factors are against such a choice:

1. The waterway would be too far south, requiring about two days steaming time for vessels moving from one coast to the other.
2. The canal would be longer than a site in Panama, further slowing down ship movement at a time when daily costs are an important factor in ocean shipping.
3. Removal of the canal from Panama, major source of economic support for the Republic of Panama, would put the United States in a position of making heavy financial aid to Panama to avoid economic and political chaos.

There are many ifs about the Colombian project. Preliminary studies have been contracted for by the Ministry of Public Works, but approval and appropriations from the Colombian Congress are not yet to come. A number of engineering problems remain unsolved. More detailed studies have been recommended by Hudson Institute, Inc., of Harmon-on-Hudson, N.Y. which has reviewed early studies made for the government of Colombia, and considers they offer likely prospects of feasibility.

Still another major factor is whether Colombia could obtain financial assistance from abroad. The Hudson Institute says the waterway, power plants and dams could be completed in 10 years. Preliminary cost estimates (in millions of dollars):

Atrato River

Dam	$100
Canal to sea	20
Locks	40
Power facilities	270

San Juan River

Dam	$18
Canal to sea	15
Locks	40
Power facilities	90
Canal linking two lakes	150
Total	$743

Egypt Seizes Holdings

CAIRO AP - Egyptian authorities have seized the Ford Motor Co.'s property and deposits in Egyptian banks pending clearance of custom debts totaling $1.7 million, a government announcement said today.

At Dearborn, Mich., headquarters of Ford Motor Co., Ford officials, including President Arjay Miller and Allen W. Merrell, vice president, civic and government affairs, went into a hastily called meeting to discuss the seizure.

A Ford spokesman said the Alexandria plant had been closed since last February.

The amount accumulated because of customs duties on spare parts imported by Ford into the United Arab Republic, authorities said.

Ford has one plant at Semouha in Alexandria for assembling cars and tractors.

There was no immediate information available on the amount Ford has in Egyptian banks or the value of its plant.

Sikeston Firms Low Bidders at Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Central Construction Co., Sikeston, was low bidder on two of five contracts let Tuesday afternoon for street and sewer construction here.

Bonds to partially finance the projects was also sold at the session.

Three other contracts were awarded to Parthenon Construction Co., Sikeston; Curtis F. Veach Construction Co., Tipton, Tenn., and West Construction Co., Poplar Bluff.

Four contracts will be let on the sewer construction project, including those for building sewage collection and interceptor lines, sewage pump stations, sewage force mains and a sewage oxidation pond.

The fifth contact was for construction of a paved street.

Construction is expected to begin in January.

Viet Policy Hot Issue In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia AP - The commitment of 4,500 fighting men in Viet Nam is the big issue in Saturday's Australian national elections. Prime Minister Harold Holt's government, which sent the troops to war, is heavily favored to survive.

"Foreign policy is the very core of this election and that's how it has been, if foreign policy is taken to mean the wisdom of being involved in Viet Nam," Holt declared early in the campaign.

Despite a rash of anti-Viet Nam demonstrations, political circles say that feeling does not appear strong enough to give victory to the Labor party of Arthur A. Calwell.

Labor has 52 of the 124 seats in the retiring Parliament and needs a big vote to swing to win a majority and unseat Holt. The ruling Liberal-County party coalition has 71 seats. There is one independent.

Traffic Deaths Hit 232

By the Associated Press

The toll of traffic deaths in the nation's long Thanksgiving weekend rose slowly today.

Deaths thus far in the holiday numbered 232, including 50 victims in the 18-or-under age group.

The tabulation of holiday traffic fatalities began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and will end at midnight Sunday.

During a recent nonholiday four-day period, an Associated Press survey, made for comparative purposes, showed a total of 546 traffic deaths.

However, the National Safety Council did not make an advance estimate of highway deaths for the long weekend. The council said it considers the Thanksgiving period as basically a home holiday which does not involve as much driving as other major holidays.

Traffic deaths hit a record high of 615 during the Thanksgiving weekend last year. Since the AP started tabulating highway deaths for the holiday eight years ago the lowest total was 442 in 1960.

Deaths in traffic accidents in the first nine months this year totaled 38,190, a 10 per cent increase over the corresponding period in 1965. The National Safety Council has said that last year's record toll of 49,000 deaths may be surpassed this year

In the four previous major holidays this year, traffic deaths set record marks; New Year 564, Memorial Day 542, Independence Day 576 and Labor Day 636.

Pair Convicted In Slaying

CAIRO, Ill. AP -- Paul Baykowski, 33, of St. Louis, and Vincent Gendron, 31, of East St. Louis, Ill., were convicted by a jury Wednesday of voluntary manslaughter.

They were charged in connection with the death April 13 of David Caughlin of Cairo, Ill.

Circuit Judge Dorothy Spomer deferred sentencing to allow defense attorneys to file motions if they desired.

Bayowski and Gendron are being held in the Alexander County jail at Cairo.

Health Clinic Set Thursday

MOREHOUSE--A health clinic for low income families for New Madrid county, will be held at the Delmo Service Center Thursday.

Persons interested in bringing their children for a physical examination are asked to call NO 7-5161 before the meeting.

Manslaughter Charges Filed

KENNETT -- Dave M. Peterson, 62, of St. Paul community, was arraigned Wednesday morning in Dunklin magistrate court on a manslaughter charge, filed Tuesday by Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker, in connection with the death by drowning of Mack Chaney, 58, of Steele last Saturday.

Peterson was taken into custody Monday by Sheriff Raymond Scott and Sgt. Wayne C. Brooks at his home in St. Paul.

Authorities report they have evidence that Peterson was driving the pickup truck which ran off a bridge 2 1/2 miles southeast of Rives on a township road about 9 p.m. Saturday.

Sheriff Scott said that Peterson apparently got out of the truck safely and left Chaney in the truck to drown.

Peterson requested a preliminary hearing which was set by Judge Leon McAnally.

Smog Poses Threat

NEW YORK AP - The New York metropolitan area lay under a blanket of polluted air again today and officials warned persons with heart and respiratory ailments to stay indoors. A forecast of wind and possible rain promised relief, however.

The index of air pollution was about 3-1/2 times the normal level as the sun rose through a dismal haze today. But the measurement showed a drop from the critical level reached Thursday night.

Any deaths attributed to the smog would not be reported for a few days. A 10-day period of stagnant air in November 1963 was blamed for from 170 to 260 deaths.

The pollution, which began to increase Wednesday night, was attributed to a massive temperature inversion hanging over the middle Atlantic coast. The inversion occurs frequently in the late fall, when warm air overrides and imprisons surface air.

Eustin N. Heller, city commissioner of air pollution control, said an air pollution reading of 60.6, five times the average level of 12, was registered at 8 p.m. Thursday, indicating an amount he said may have been the city's highest in history.

It dropped to 18.5 in the predawn hours, and had risen to 43.2 at the height of the commuter rush this morning when streets and parkways were jammed with vehicular traffic and incinerators were being lit. An air temperature of about 60 was expected.

The pollution count, based on a statistical measurement of sulphur dioxice and carbon dioxide in the air, indicates the amount of harmful substances in the atmosphere. The level considered dangerous is 50.

Heavy pollution was reported in Philadelphia and Boston, where sulphur dioxide in the air reached six times the normal level Thursday. Weather bureaus in both cities predicted there was a chance of relief today or Saturday.

At the smog's height in New York, Heller said he was "very, very close" to calling an air pollution alert which, if put into effect, could have closed some industries and kept cars from the streets.

New York residents had been asked not to burn leaves and the city requested two major power companies to use natural gas at their plants instead of fuel oil. All municipal incinerators were shut down.

Fat Girls May Be Victims of Prejudice

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. AP -- Fat high school pupils, especially girls, are discriminated against by college admissions officials, reports the Harvard School of Public Health.

The prejudice is shared by high school teachers who recommend students for college, a Harvard report says.

"It is probably that this prejudice is entirely unconscious," the researchers said in a report published in the New England Journal of Medicine.

Prof. Jean Mayer and a senior research assistant in nutrition, Helen Canning, felt there were fewer obese students in the prestige colleges than in public high schools.

To check their observations they chose a large, middle-class suburban high school and freshman classes at an Ivy League school and one of the Ivy League "sister schools."

They said they found the obese high school pupils to be as well - qualified and just as interested in going to college as slim students.

But, they said, there were twice as many obese girls in the high schools as in the colleges. For boys, there were one-third to one - half more obese pupils in the high schools.

Two - thirds more of the slim girls went on to college, they reported.

"I think this is what happens," Prof. Mayer said. "An admissions officer looks at an obese girl applying to college during an interview and says to herself. "This girl won't fit in at Wellesley."

Mayer said he was using Wellesley symbolically, that he meant colleges in general.

The researchers said while their study was confined to high - ranking colleges, they believe "a similiar type of discrimination operates in the admission procedures of lesser ranking colleges."

Grand Jury Probe Begins In Alleged Casino Rakeoffs

By Robert M. Shaw

LAS VEGAS, NEV. (AP) - Nevada gamblers and state gaming agency officials are expected to testify in a federal grand jury investigation beginning today into alleged casino rakeoffs in the nation's gambling capital.

The grand jury is to hear information from an Internal Revenue Service investigation of claims that gamblers "skim" profits from the tops of their multimillion-dollar casino tills and hide them from taxmen.

The state officials will be among the first to testify. But indications are that they will not appear until Monday. Names of the state officials and gamblers summoned to the hearing were not revealed.

The initial purpose of the grand jury will be to "determine if casinos have reported their full income," said U.S. Atty. Joseph Ward.

The FBI has claimed that money from "skimming" is funneled into the underworld of Chicago, Cleveland, and Miami. FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has said Nevada's legalized gambling "occupies a position of major importance in the scheme or organized crime and racketeering."

Ward said the investigation at the start would not involve allegations of underworld connections.

Officials refused to speculate on whether any FBI evidence might be tainted because it was admittedly gathered by electronic eavesdropping in at least one casino on the Las Vegas strip.

The IRS was expected to claim it was unaware of the FBI eavesdropping and that its tax information was not gathered through "bugging."

Nevada's Gaming Control Board and parent Gaming Commission held closed-door hearings into the FBI claims in August.

Gaming Board Chairman Edward A. Olsen said the hearing uncovered no evidence of substantial rakeoffs or of any underworld connections.

Under Olsen's direction, undercover agents from the state gambled at the tables posing as tourists - and counted the casino profit made from all gamblers at each table.

Olsen said the agents counted a cash drop of $1,326,424.

"This contrasted with a drop of $1,302,196 reported - by the casinos - on the same tables, for a deficit of $24,228 or 1.8 per cent," Olsen said.

"The limited scope of the sampling, coupled with the leeway for human error in these undercover tallies, could well account for this minimal discrepancy," he said.

Two of the leaders attending a St. Johns Bayou and St. James watershed meeting were listed erroneously as being in the front row of a picture in Wednesday's Daily Standard. They were Lloyd Hall, East Prairie and Gilbert Bryant, Charleston. Both were in the back row.

Dialers to Add Digit

Beginning Thursday it will be necessary for Sikeston telephone customers to dial the numeral 1 before dialing station-to-station long distance calls, John Donoho, manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, announced.

This change is a result of new equipment in the telephone office capable of handling telephone service expansion, Donoho said.

"Starting Dec. 1, when a Sikeston customer wishes to place a station-to-station long distance call," Donoho explained, "he will dial the numeral 1 first, then the area code and the telephone number he is calling."

There will be no change in dialing local or other long distance calls.

"Detailed instructions concerning Numeral 1 dialing will be mailed to Sikeston telephone customers before Dec. 1," Donoho said.

Numeral 1 dialing is a standard nation-wide procedure in the Bell system. Many Missouri exchanges already use this dialing plan. Numeral 1 dialing instructions will be in the new Sikeston telephone directory to be delivered by Thursday.

Fines Levied At New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Things were quieter in Judge Erie Wright's magistrate court this week than they have been for a long time, according to Mrs. Lorene Thompson, chief clerk. Four cases appeared on the record. Three persons paid fines for speeding and two for failure to have an operator's license.

Joel A. Inkle and Wayne Bagley each paid $15 fines for speeding and John L. Davis and Alice Faye Peterson fined for failure to have an operator's l...

$268 Taken From Station

HAYTI - Police reported that one man was taken before the Pemiscot county prosecuting attorney for investigation of money stolen from the Dawson Service Station.

The man is being held after $268 was taken from the station while an attendant on duty was outside the station.

The money was found to be missing Thursday morning.

Real Estate Course Offered

A meeting to organize a course in rural real estate appraisal will be held Wednesday at 7:30 in the First National Bank's community room. Residents of New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and Mississippi may take it.

This is a three hour college credit course from the University of Missouri Agricultural economics department in Columbia.

The classes will meet for at least 10 weeks, four hours a week.

Real estate people, insurance agents, bankers, farmers and other interested persons are asked to be present to register Wednesday night.

There is a requirement of 20 enrollees for the course.

Dr. Frank Miller, professor emeritus at the University of Missouri in agricultural economics and land economist, will teach the course.

Cong Forces Routed

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Two Vietnamese irregular companies and their U. S. "Green Beret" Special Forces advisers came out on top tonight in heavy combat with a Communist force in the tangled jungles of War Zone C, an American command stokesman announced.

A U. S. Army company linked up with the 240 or so irregulars he said, and "the Viet Cong fled." There was no final report of casualties on either side, though initial advices were that allied losses were light.

American artillery and air strikes had pounded the Communist troops in the action, in Tay Ninh Province nine miles northeast of Tay Ninh City and about 45 miles northwest of Saigon.

North Vietnamese troops wiped out a similar Vietnamese force in the same region a month ago.

The Tay Ninh action was the most spectacular ground contact in a day which saw U.S. 1st Cavalry Division troops chase the Viet Cong up river valleys of the central coast in Binh Dinh Province while 25 Division infantrymen scoured caves in the highlands and found numerous graves.

U. S. Air Force and Navy planes were beset by heavy weather over North Viet Nam for the eighth day in a row Thursday, but chalked up a total of 101 missions.

U. S. Marine Corps planes were active in South Viet Nam, flying a record 257 sorties against Viet Cong targets, mainly in support of ground operations in the vicinity of the demilitarized zone between the two Viet Nams.

Details were sparse on the Vietnamese strike force action in Tay Ninh province. But at midafternoon the force was reported still heavily engaged and had suffered light casualties at that point.

The battle area was in deep jungle. U. S. infantrymen are operating in the same region, and preparations were being made to rush reinforcements into the fight.

U. S. officials, meanwhile, untangled the confusion surrounding the Thanksgiving Day ambush of an American civilian-military convoy on Highway 11 south of Dalat.

Final casualty figures announced today were one U.S. military man killed and six wounded, one U. S. civilian killed, one Canadian civilian killed, four Koreans killed, one Filipino killed and one Vietnamese killed.

One U.S. civilian and a Canadian, a Korean and Vietnamese also were wounded.

The new official figures were much lower than the 20 reported killed and 10 wounded announced on Thanksgiving Day. A spokesman said one military water truck and two Page Communications Engineering Inc., vans were destroyed, and three Page vans seriously damaged.

First Cavalry troops, following up a successful action Thanksgiving Day in which they killed 30 Viet Cong along the central coast and captured 11, struck out along the base of the An Loa Valley today, making occasional contact.

The Thanksgiving Day action involved two companies of ca-

Police Make Two Arrests

Two arrests were made by the police over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Michael A. Cox, Perkins, charged with driving while intoxicated, posted bond of $56; Mary Turner, 112 Luther, charged with peace disturbance.

Injuries Fatal To Texas Man

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Joe Lynn Newell, 30, Irving, Tex., died Thursday at a Cape Girardeau hospital from injuries sustained in a one car accident Nov. 12.

He was injured when his car ran off the road and hit a tree north of Marble Hill. He suffered a crushed chest and fractured skull and never regained consciousness.

The body was taken to Cracraft - Miller Funeral Home at Jackson.

The highway patrol said 128 persons have been killed on Southeast Missouri highways this year compared to 160 at this time last year.

Trapped Fumes Released

SCRANTON, Pa. AP - There was no long holiday weekend for those drilling holes in the streets of South Scranton, searching for an underground mine fire that has filled homes in the area with deadly carbon-monoxide fumes.

Men stood by rotary drills throughout Thanksgiving Day and into today, punching holes in the earth they hope will "bleed off" the fumes rising from the subsurface fires

Mayor James J. Walsh said holes would be drilled until the fire is pinpointed and every effort made to extinguish the blaze that has forced evacuation of some two dozen families. Walsh said this could mean drilling 120 holes.

In the past 48 hours 10 holes were drilled in the continuous effort to get to the source and allow the fumes to escape.

Police and National Guard troops roped off an eight-block section of this city in Pennsylvania's anthracite region to guard against looting at homes evacuated after the fumes began rising during the past week. Health officials have declared at least four houses "unfit for human habitation."

The fire is in abandoned mines under Scranton.

There have been no deaths resulting from the current outbreak of fumes, authorities said.

The mayor said the holes drilled so far have not reached the fire. However, the holes, which go to a depth of 126 feet, are allowing bottled-up fumes to escape into the air. The holes are about 25 inches in diameter.

About 20 National Guard troops were called in by Gov. William W. Scranton. A team of 36 firemen trained in gas detection is working "around the clock" to test for fumes, Walsh said.

Vandals Damage Buildings

Vandals damaged a storage building of the John Deere Farm Equipment Co., 130 South Kingshighway, over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Manager L. A. Schurerenberg found 18 window panes in the storage building had been broken. Rocks and empty paint cans were thrown into the building as well as through another window in the main building.

Names of several youths have been turned over to police after they were caught handling new equipment in a storage lot, starting motors, and taking parts from farm vehicles.

Fifteen Treated For Injuries

Fifteen persons were treated for minor injuries in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital, Wednesday and Thursday:

Lloyd Thieret Jr., injured neck while stacking food cartons at McKnight-Keaton; Dwan Cathey, mashed end of right index finger under airpress at work; Deanna Parsons, Charleston, fell on steps at home and injured knee; Patricia Graviett, Oran, injured in fall at work at Anchor Toy; Harvey Spencer, Canalou, cut on forehead at Hart's Bakery; Janice Holifield, Morehouse, injured in truck accident near Morehouse.

Police Look for Stolen Hardtop

Police were notified to be on the look out for a beige 1959 two - door Ford hardtop, stolen in Osceola, Ark., and believed being driven toward Illinois.

The report was received today at 5:30 a.m.

Colombian Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government of Colombia has unveiled plans, still in a preliminary stage, for a development of huge proportions.

They include the building of a ship canal, 260 miles long, between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, not as a competitor of the Panama Canal but for movement of Colombia's coffee and other exports, and for small ships going to and from South America's west coast.

But the canal is only one aspect of the gigantic plan which Colombians envision as a producer of hydroelectric power and the industrial, agricultural and social advancement of a big area of northern Colombia.

The plan resembles somewhat a miniature TVA.

The waterway, with twin locks at either end, would be along a route from the Gulf of Uraba, on the Carribbean Sea just below the Panama-Colombia border, southward to a lake formed by damming the Atrato River, and westward to the Pacific in the vicinity of Buenaventura.

Actually, the creation of two great lakes is proposed, one formed by the San Juan River in the west and the other by the Atrato in northern Colombia. The lakes would be joined by a 30-mile ship channel, 328 feet wide, 39 feet deep, costing an estimated $150 million.

Similar channels, one 34 miles long at the north, and another 4.5 miles long at the south, would be built to lead to the oceans.

The Atrato lake would be 120 miles long and almost 30 miles wide at its broadest point. The San Juan lake would be 69 miles long and about 9 miles at its widest point.

Like TVA, which depends heavily on sales of electric power for its income, the Colombian project would be pegged to two hydroelectric plants, one at the dam on the San Juan River, with a capacity of 800,000 kilowatts and the other at the Atrato dam, with a capacity of 2.5 million kilowatts.

Early estimates say the canal itself, one of the most spectacular features of the Colombian plan, would not alone pay out, but that power revenues would meet entire costs of the project in a few years.

Colombian officials hasten to explain that the canal would not be in serious competition with the Panama Canal, nor of the sea level waterway the United States is considering at some point in Middle America.

Experts here agree. They say the waterway would be too small to handle ships above 20,000 tons, and that the current trend is for much larger ships, especially tankers. In addition, they estimate the Colombian route would take about two days' more for vessels on normal trade routes. In effect, the canal will be more in the nature of an inland waterway for local purposes.

One route being considered by U.S. experts for the sea level canal is in Colombia, about 20 miles north of the Atrato River, and would take the shortest route across the country - 95.4 miles. The Panama Canal is 50 miles long, U.S. experts estimated the cost of a seal level waterway across Colombia at about $1.2 billion.

The first estimate on cost of the entire Colombian project, including power facilities, was $743 million. Engineers conceded, however, that much more detailed studies will have to be made.

The two projects are not identical. The U.S. plan calls for a waterway to be dug for the entire route, and kept within a channel adequate for maritime safety, not spreading out over a wide area, as would the Colombian project. The Colombian plans call for damming two rivers to form lakes furnishing 189 of the 260 miles of the proposed canal.

There is widespread speculation here that Colombia is not a likely choice for the U.S. sea level canal. Three factors are against such a choice:

1. The waterway would be too far south, requiring about two days steaming time for vessels moving from one coast to the other.
2. The canal would be longer than a site in Panama, further slowing down ship movement at a time when daily costs are an important factor in ocean shipping.
3. Removal of the canal from Panama, major source of economic support for the Republic of Panama, would put the United States in a position of making heavy financial aid to Panama to avoid economic and political chaos.

There are many ifs about the Colombian project. Preliminary studies have been contracted for by the Ministry of Public Works, but approval and appropriations from the Colombian Congress are not yet to come. A number of engineering problems remain unsolved. More detailed studies have been recommended by Hudson Institute, Inc., of Harmon-on-Hudson, N.Y. which has reviewed early studies made for the government of Colombia, and considers they offer likely prospects of feasibility.

Still another major factor is whether Colombia could obtain financial assistance from abroad. The Hudson Institute says the waterway, power plants and dams could be completed in 10 years. Preliminary cost estimates (in millions of dollars):

Atrato River
Dam	$100
Canal to sea	20
Locks	40
Power facilities	270
San Juan River
Dam	$18
Canal to sea	15
Locks	40
Power facilities	90
Canal linking two lakes	150
Total	$743

Egypt Seizes Holdings

CAIRO AP - Egyptian authorities have seized the Ford Motor Co.'s property and deposits in Egyptian banks pending clearance of custom debts totaling $1.7 million, a government announcement said today.

At Dearborn, Mich., headquarters of Ford Motor Co., Ford officials, including President Arjay Miller and Allen W. Merrell, vice president, civic and government affairs, went into a hastily called meeting to discuss the seizure.

A Ford spokesman said the Alexandria plant had been closed since last February.

The amount accumulated because of customs duties on spare parts imported by Ford into the United Arab Republic, authorities said.

Ford has one plant at Semouha in Alexandria for assembling cars and tractors.

There was no immediate information available on the amount Ford has in Egyptian banks or the value of its plant.

Sikeston Firms Low Bidders at Caruthersville

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Central Construction Co., Sikeston, was low bidder on two of five contracts let Tuesday afternoon for street and sewer construction here.

Bonds to partially finance the projects was also sold at the session.

Three other contracts were awarded to Parthenon Construction Co., Sikeston; Curtis F. Veach Construction Co., Tipton, Tenn., and West Construction Co., Poplar Bluff.

Four contracts will be let on the sewer construction project, including those for building sewage collection and interceptor lines, sewage pump stations, sewage force mains and a sewage oxidation pond.

The fifth contact was for construction of a paved street.

Construction is expected to begin in January.

Viet Policy Hot Issue In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia AP - The commitment of 4,500 fighting men in Viet Nam is the big issue in Saturday's Australian national elections. Prime Minister Harold Holt's government, which sent the troops to war, is heavily favored to survive.

"Foreign policy is the very core of this election and that's how it has been, if foreign policy is taken to mean the wisdom of being involved in Viet Nam," Holt declared early in the campaign.

Despite a rash of anti-Viet Nam demonstrations, political circles say that feeling does not appear strong enough to give victory to the Labor party of Arthur A. Calwell.

Labor has 52 of the 124 seats in the retiring Parliament and needs a big vote to swing to win a majority and unseat Holt. The ruling Liberal-County party coalition has 71 seats. There is one independent.

Traffic Deaths Hit 232

By the Associated Press

The toll of traffic deaths in the nation's long Thanksgiving weekend rose slowly today.

Deaths thus far in the holiday numbered 232, including 50 victims in the 18-or-under age group.

The tabulation of holiday traffic fatalities began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and will end at midnight Sunday.

During a recent nonholiday four-day period, an Associated Press survey, made for comparative purposes, showed a total of 546 traffic deaths.

However, the National Safety Council did not make an advance estimate of highway deaths for the long weekend. The council said it considers the Thanksgiving period as basically a home holiday which does not involve as much driving as other major holidays.

Traffic deaths hit a record high of 615 during the Thanksgiving weekend last year. Since the AP started tabulating highway deaths for the holiday eight years ago the lowest total was 442 in 1960.

Deaths in traffic accidents in the first nine months this year totaled 38,190, a 10 per cent increase over the corresponding period in 1965. The National Safety Council has said that last year's record toll of 49,000 deaths may be surpassed this year.

In the four previous major holidays this year, traffic deaths set record marks; New Year 564, Memorial Day 542, Independence Day 576 and Labor Day 636.

Pair Convicted In Slaying

CAIRO, Ill. AP -- Paul Baykowski, 33, of St. Louis, and Vincent Gendron, 31, of East St. Louis, Ill., were convicted by a jury Wednesday of voluntary manslaughter.

They were charged in connection with the death April 13 of David Caughlin of Cairo, Ill.

Circuit Judge Dorothy Spomer deferred sentencing to allow defense attorneys to file motions if they desired.

Bayowski and Gendron are being held in the Alexander County jail at Cairo.

Manslaughter Charges Filed

KENNETT -- Dave M. Peterson, 62, of St. Paul community, was arraigned Wednesday morning in Dunklin magistrate court on a manslaughter charge, filed Tuesday by Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker, in connection with the death by drowning of Mack Chaney, 58, of Steele last Saturday.

Peterson was taken into custody Monday by Sheriff Raymond Scott and Sgt. Wayne C. Brooks at his home in St. Paul.

Authorities report they have evidence that Peterson was driving the pickup truck which ran off a bridge 2 1/2 miles southeast of Rives on a township road about 9 p.m. Saturday.

Sheriff Scott said that Peterson apparently got out of the truck safely and left Chaney in the truck to drown.

Peterson requested a preliminary hearing which was set by Judge Leon McAnally.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

THE FAITH OF THE PILGRIMS

In a Thanksgiving message, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI paid a moving tribute to the Pilgrims and the ideals they left to us. Then he said: "Regrettably, too many Americans no longer care about religious ideals and heritage. To some, our country is a fantasy-land filled with complimentary handouts of rights and freedoms without obligations. With patent indifference, they shirk the mere suggestion of individual responsibility. Their purpose in life is lost in moral lethargy, self-indulgence, and neglect of duty."

A cynical, unthinking attitude such as Mr. Hoover describes can, if ever it becomes widespread enough, prove suicidal for this or any nation. All our material abundance could not then save us from ultimate destruction as a free people. Those who forsake duty ask for masters who will impose duty - the duty of slaves. The faith of the Pilgrims was never so greatly needed as it is today.

A BREAK FOR TOURISTS

Would-be tourists of limited means will get a big break starting Saturday, Nov. 26. That is the effective date of a Civil Aeronautics Board decision authorizing 11 nonscheduled or supplemental airlines to enter the foreign charter-flight field. Americans who have yearned to visit Europe but could not afford the air fare will now be able to do so.

The prospective savings in air fare and related expenses are startling. One supplemental carrier calculates that it could offer a two-week package tour of Europe for $440, with all expenses except meals included. The lowest economy air fare to Europe and back on an international carrier now stands at $300.

The CAB's motives for widening the horizons of supplemental airlines were various. For one thing, the decision exerted indirect pressure on American and foreign international carriers to lower their fares. But a desire to narrow the tourist dollar gap may have been a more compelling reason. Foreign as well as American tourists are expected to take advantage of the low-priced tours to be offered by the supplementals. The dollars they spend will stay in this country instead of adding to foreign claims on American gold reserves.

One big "if" could scuttle the whole undertaking. Supplemental airlines wishing to take advantage of the CAB decision must first acquire landing rights from the foreign governments involved. These rights could be hard to get if foreign international carriers, whose business would be affected, objected strenuously enough.

SAXON'S GOODBY

Five controversial years of public service came to a close on Tuesday, Nov. 15, when James J. Saxon concluded his term as Comptroller of the Currency. The banking business will never be the same again.

President Johnson has named as Saxon's successor William B. Camp, who had been First Deputy Comptroller. Camp is a Saxon man, and his appointment was on Saxon's recommendation. Nevertheless, the feeling in the banking community is that Camp will be an easier man to get along with.

Saxon, by contrast, shook the cobwebs off the banking establishment. He chartered 500 or so new banks, allowed the 4,800 national banks to open new branches by the hundreds--more than 3,000--and made more than 6,000 changes in the procedures and rules by which banks conduct business. Although his office was the oldest regulatory agency of government, 105 years old, it was relatively obscure when he was appointed by President Kennedy five years ago. Not a working banker, Saxon had been an attorney with the First National Bank of Chicago.

Because of Saxon, largely, banks today are running travel agencies, selling insurance, servicing mortgages, running mutual funds, and offering factoring services. His office is now involved in more than 40 lawsuits throughout the country and six antitrust actions.

In a kind of swan song, Saxon gave his philosophy of banking before the American Bankers Association on Oct. 24. "We have found no considerations of the public welfare," he said, "which would justify the outright exclusion of banks from the performance of any financial function." Saxon stressed the "any."

LABELING THE PILL

A woman shopping for oral contraceptives can choose among eight brands, all of which contain roughly the same ingredients. The trouble is that the prescription labels on the eight brands are all different, even though each was approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

After due consideration, the FDA has opted for uniformity in labeling. An order handed down on Nov. 13 required identical directions on existing birth control pills and on those yet to be approved for sale. Manufacturers of the pills have until Sunday, Nov. 27, to file papers signifying their intention to conform with the order.

The FDA order will prohibit manufacturers from making therapeutic claims for their products. All labels will warn lactating women against taking oral contraceptives. Moreover, they will recommend non-use by women with a history of clotting, liver disease, or breast or genital cancer.

In time, the birth control pill may seem crude and old-fashioned. Pill-swallowing may be supplanted by once-a-month or once-a-year injections. Or refinements of the intra-uterine "loop" may win greater favor. Even today, though, oral contraceptives are given most of the credit for the declining U.S. birth rate, which is as low now - about 19 births per 1,000 population - as it was in the depths of the Great Depression.

THE VIGOROUS LIFE

Team physicians and others interested in sports medicine will meet in Las Vegas on Sunday, Nov. 27, to consider medical problems at all levels of athletic competition. The meeting is in conjunction with the American Medical Association's four-day clinical convention.

The most dramatic evidence of the hazards of sport at the moment is found in the shortage of professional football quarterbacks. Half a dozen have been put out for the season. Inasmuch as modern football makes the quarterback the piston of the team machine, the slogan of the defense is quite frankly, "Get the quarterback." The New York Giants, incidentally, have set some kind of a record with nine knee operations so far this season.

More disturbing than what is happening to the pros, however, is what goes on in schools and colleges. Last year during the early hot days of football practice, there were six deaths in the United States from heat exhaustion and heat stroke. These fatalities accounted for nearly 15 per cent of the total deaths from football in 1965.

The continuing argument between prohibition of dangerous sports and wide participation in all forms of athletics will probably never be settled, though the latter attitude seems to prevail more and more. John F. Kennedy as president-elect probably spoke for his generation in the Dec. 26, 1960 issue of Sports Illustrated when he wrote: "We do not want our children to become a generation of spectators. Rather, we want each of them to be a participant in the vigorous life."

NEW YORK (AP) — Things to be thankful for in an anxious time:

The happy sounds of childhood echoing from another room. Oyster dressing and pumpkin pie. The brown and steaming turkey. The sweet sad thoughts for ones no longer at the table.

All remembrances of April. Belts that buckle and people who don't. The excited barking of frolicking dogs. The rush of impatient feet on the pavement hurrying to the harbor of waiting arms. The surprise, after asking for someone missing, and finding that that someone is there after all.

The opening of all doors that lead to joy. The unpeeling splendor of the stars in the cold glory of a winter night, glittering like peepholes into heaven. The feel of oak bark and the prickling thrill of a pine cone gripped in the hand.

All the thronging odors of nature in a time-warmed land. The lapping of endless waters. The kindling happiness of sharing a loved one's brag.

The groaning ecstasy of trees tormented by capricious winds. The color comparison of autumn and the fruitful thoughts that lie in fallen leaves —a carpet of crisp. All letters of the English alphabet except X. The solidity of massive buildings dated with the simple grandeur of Roman numerals.

Walking across a bridge toward something unknown on the other side. The unctuous peril of whipped cream, forbidden calories in froth. The purring of please cats, and the marching trot of any music by Mozart.

Finding the right letter in the wrong office file. Tapping a foot to the tune piped in from lord-knows - where in the office elevator. Saying a glad goodby to someone you'll be glad to say hello to real soon again. The confidence of expectation. Watching a high-up window cleaner massage the portholes of a skyscraper, one man against a concrete mass.

Seeing sunlight break out on a small boy's face after a torrent of sobs. The healing of all hurts, large or small. The staccato thrum of banjo strings, merry a silver moon-beams. Opening a telegram and finding the news is good.

Coming out of a hospital by the same door wherein you went. The pawing of each other by scuffling zoo bears at play. Letting teen - age children think they can really outrace you up lanes that lead to home. The plain elegance of vanilla ice cream, and one freckle on a snub nose. The completeness of the Statue of Liberty, a nation's moving creed in moveless metal. The cherishing of simple delights that bear no price tag.

A wife's face by candlelight. Calming with a cup of water a sleepy child's terror of the dark. Counting the green exposions of a budding bough outside the window in spring. The white thrill of responding sails. The resonance of man's best hopes and dreams.

All causes worth sacrifice. The mystery of the power that throbs the universe through every twilight and the majesty of every new - born morning.

For all this and more, thanks.

WASHINGTON -- Selective service officials have been considering the complaints made by congressmen that the present draft system of deferring college students is discriminatory. The congress point out that poor boys who can't afford education are drafted while those who can afford to go to college are not.

Draft officials reply that more people are deferred for lack of education than for higher education. The number of boys turned down because they lack public -school background or are otherwise mentally deficient is a long and alarming one. Statistically, they claim, the present induction requirements favor the poor and uneducated not the wealthy.

At any rate, it's almost certain that college students who keep their grades up will definitely be deferred from the draft for the remainder of the school year. This policy will probably also continue in effect during the 1967-68 school year.

THE MET'S MUSICIANS

A strike of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, whose wage problems were supposedly settled between acts during the opening of the world premiere of the new opera house, looms again. The negotiators made the mistake of not putting the agreement in writing before the curtain went up to announce the strike settlement on that dramatic evening.

Executives of the Metropolitan Opera say the orchestra had saved up its grievances until just before the gala opening last September when the world spotlight would be focused on the Met. They had agreed to play for the opening, but not thereafter. The Metropolitan Opera board, composed of some of the biggest businessmen in New York, were rigid as rock prior to the negotiations, but on the eve of the opening they panicked and gave the orchestra much of what it demanded.

The Missouri State Highway Patrol reports that the rise in the number of traffic deaths in Missouri for the first ten months of this year was attributed to the 17 per cent increase in urban traffic deaths.

There were 261 urban traffic deaths during the first ten months of this year, as compared to the 223 fatalities in 1965.

At the same time, the rural traffic death toll was about the same for the two comparable periods. The number of rural deaths during the first ten months of this year totaled 885. This was one more than for the same period last year.

The Patrol noted that all but three of its nine troop areas had a reduction in traffic fatalities. The greatest reduction of rural traffic deaths for this period was in the Troop B area which covers 16 counties in the northeastern part of the State. Other areas recording less fatalities were the 13 central counties patrolled by Troop F, the 13 west central counties of Troop A, the nine south central counties of Troop G, the six mid-south counties of Troop I and the 14 southeastern counties of Troop E.

Troop H in the northwestern part of the State, Troop C in the east central portion, and Troop D in the southwestern part of Missouri reported an increase in traffic deaths for the ten month period this year.

The pedestrian fatality toll was lower in the cities from January 1 this year thru October 31, as compared to this same period last year. In 1965, 77 pedestrians were killed on city streets while the toll this year was 66.

There was an increase in the number of pedestrians killed in the rural areas of the State during this time. Seventy people died while walking in rural traffic this year as compared to 63 for the same period last year.

The total number of urban traffic deaths at the end of last year was 289 and the final fatality toll in the rural areas reached 1,081.

LANDSLIDE STAGGERS

Out - of - state money, reportedly from Wall Street and Madison Avenue, was poured into the West Virginia mountain country in a last-minute drive to unseat Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W. Va., who had gone unnoticed by outsiders until he took over the chairmanship this year of the powerful House Commerce Committee.

Unlike previous chairmen, he has refused to let the lobbyists for the big networks and the big corporations control the legislation that comes out of his committee.

These lobbyists have already brought pressure upon Democratic leaders to restore the seniority of Rep. John Williams, D-Miss., who had outranked Staggers until the Democratic caucus slapped him down for supporting Barry Goldwater in the 1964 Presiden election.

If the Democrats would restore Williams' rights, he would be able to bump Staggers as Commerce Chairman. A move by Williams to take over de facto leadership was beaten back by Staggers in a showdown over the truth- in-packaging bill. The chairman forced the bill through the committee over the opposition of Williams who tried to rally a majority on the side of the big producers.

It was after Williams' bid for leadership foundered that money started flooding into Staggers' district to buy newspaper ads and handbills urging his defeat.

"Do you want your sons to die in wars that cannot be won because your tax dollars are aiding the enemy?" demanded one half - page ad calling for Staggers' defeat.

A letter, sent to almost all the voters in his district, charged; "Harley Staggers has had a part in legislation that causes our men in Viet Nam to die each day due to war material indirectly supplied to the enemy by our country."

A pamphlet with the title, "Did your congressman vote to aid the Communists?" was also circulated throughout the district. It showed Staggers' name circled in red as having a "pro - Communist" voting record.

It is significant that this scurrilous propaganda, financed by out - of - state interests, had never been used against Staggers until he began standing in the way of special - interest legislation.

Staggers, however, was returned to congress by a landslide.

FIRST SOCIALIST SETTLEMENT IN AMERICA

With the coming of the Pilgrims to the New England coast in 1620, Plymouth Colony was established as the first Socialist settlement in America.

What is generally ignored, overlooked and unknown about this communal experiment is that it failed miserably within three years time. For their very survival, the Pilgrims had to turn to what we call the personal enterprise system, or capitalism.

Before landing, the Pilgrims entered into the Plymouth Compact which set up the community on a share-the-wealth basis. Nobody owned anything. Whatever was produced belonged to the community as a whole. They called the system "the commone course and condition," and lived under it until the hungry spring of 1623. Then they changed to capitalism.

The shift was explained by William Bradford, one of the leading original Pilgrims and second governor of the Colony, who wrote that the socialist experiment bred confusion and retarded employment. He explained that the young men who were most able and fit for labor did little work, complaining about spending their time and strength working for other men's wives and children, without recompense.

Instead of a Thanksgiving feast in the fall of 1622, there was literal starvation. Thereafter, Bradford gave a parcel of land to each family and instructed every man to plant his own corn. This experiment in personal enterprise proved highly successful. All hands were busy, the people content, and there was much food.

In the fall of 1623 the Pilgrams held a great Thanksgiving feast and offered thanks for deliverance from Socialism. Are we today wiser than our Pilgrim fathers who rejected Socialism?

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Adventure in Electronics: Ambassador Sol Linowitz Proposses New Trans-Ocean 'People's Corps'.

On Thanksgiving Day, when virtually all of America sits at tables abundant in food and devotion, prosperity and security, there are peoples abroad who look to us -- and not to the totalitarians -- to help lift them from their poverty.

How can they be helped along the road? For an answer I turned to Sol Linowitz, an industrialist who has new and venturesome thoughts on old problems -- for his is a new mind on an ancient scene. Here is his answer:

By Sol M. Linowitz
U.S. Ambassador to the Organization of American States

Washington, D. C.: -- The time has come for government, industry, agriculture and labor to join forces to create a great new "People's Corps." Such a corps would insure that our exploding new technology is put to effective use throughout the world.

A united effort by the four major segments of the American economy to spread the technological revolution to all parts of the earth could contribute enormously to a sounder basis for world peace and prosperity. An American "People's Corps" could become the strongest program yet devised for person-to-person international aid and cooperation.

A "People's Corps" team would go into an emerging nation or one with a semi-sophisticated economy and technology on an invitation from the country. It would make available knowledge and information that would immediately be put to effective use.

The only limitation would be on ability to translate imagination into practicality.

A complete collection of all written American knowledge soon may be housed in a single microfilm library no larger than present conventional libraries. We already have machines that instantly print out in readable size type from microfilm negatives.

In the not-too-distant future, any kind of information could be flashed on demand from a central microfilm library and made accessible anywhere in the world.

When an agronomist in India needs information to save a wheat crop capable of feeding thousands of people, we can provide that information quickly and accurately.

Seven thousand school children in the lovely South Pacivic islands comprising American Samoa receive elementary education by means of a General Electric educatorial television network. This strong beginning could be expanded into a mighty "People's Corps" tool to erase illiteracy in emerging areas.

IBM data processing equipment is cutting months off census-taking time in Botswana. This emerging African nation urgently needs a foolproof shortcut to complete population and related information to plan for education and economic development.

Other IBM computers phenomenally have speeded up flood control in Guyana; malnutrition-destroying food additive development in Guatemala, Mexico and the Congo, and irrigation in Pakistan.

These are but a few of contributions abroad made by American industry on an individual basis. A "People's Corps," through coordination and dedication, could multiply such contributions to a waiting world.

We hear too much about what our new technology may do to enslave man and not enough about what it may do to liberate him.

In and of itself technology is amoral. It becomes good or bad depending upon what you do with it.

An automobile can transport you or kill you; so can an airplane. Atomic energy can blow us up or give us unlimited energy to reach unlimited horizons. Television can bring us Pablo Casals or "Peyton Place."

So the first challenge of modern technology is how to use it to accomplish what we want.

Advances in technology have meant reduction of hunger and disease, abolition of slavery, relief of bondage, extension of human life. They have led to improvements in human welfare and the alleviation of human and social needs.

Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia University, has pointed out that 90 per cent of the medical prescriptions being written today could not have been filled 20 years ago because the ingredients were then unknown.

There are methods to communicate faster than ever before, to spread truth more quickly, to bring aid more effectively, to advance progress and civilization more effectively. Data storage and processing systems today not only compile and store information but also make it available throughout the world on demand. These systems meet human needs, help to develop underdeveloped areas and inform the uninformed.

If Communism does indeed thrive on ignorance and misery, then this technology properly harnessed can become a massive bulkwark against its spread.

Even more significant is what the new technology will mean to education. One thing is certain. Advanced technology depends on the educated man to create it, to make it work and to improve it.

The narrow craftsman trained in his "splinter specialty" will no longer be able to manage things in a technological society. Progress in this kind of society will depend more on education than on all the other traditional criteria -- family, social position, inheritance, and the like.

Only the properly educated will be qualified to understand and to take the responsibility for decisions in a democratic society.

One magnificent by-product of the new technology, should, therefore, be to impel us toward a far better educated, and therefore, a stronger democratic society than ever before. It will demand governmental representatives able to deal wisely with the complex problems of the new age in such areas as space, atomic energy, defense, regulation of industry, commerce, labor, and the whole world around us.

An educated democratic society will be less apt to be intimidated by the name-caller, the tub-thumper, the breast-beater, the rumor-monger.

There are and will continue to be unfortunate and undesirable consequences of advances in technology. People have been and will continue to be thrown out of work.

But the great overriding reality is that technology is a substitute not for men but for the "machine work" that so often dehumanizes their labor and makes their lives drudgery.

Perhaps, as machines take over "machine work," people will be released to take over "people work" in a world where millions of people desperately need the help of millions of other people in developing even fundamental technical skills. In that sense, technology could become not a force riding man but a force liberating man, freeing him to reach out a helping hand to those who need what he can give.

This is the challenge that should generate in American "People's Corps."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

THE FAITH OF THE PILGRIMS

In a Thanksgiving message, Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI paid a moving tribute to the Pilgrims and the ideals they left to us. Then he said: "Regrettably, too many Americans no longer care about religious ideals and heritage. To some, our country is a fantasy-land filled with complimentary handouts of rights and freedoms without obligations. With patent indifference, they shirk the mere suggestion of individual responsibility. Their purpose in life is lost in moral lethargy, self-indulgence, and neglect of duty."

A cynical, unthinking attitude such as Mr. Hoover describes can, if ever it becomes widespread enough, prove suicidal for this or any nation. All our material abundance could not then save us from ultimate destruction as a free people. Those who forsake duty ask for masters who will impose duty - the duty of slaves. The faith of the Pilgrims was never so greatly needed as it is today.

A BREAK FOR TOURISTS

Would-be tourists of limited means will get a big break starting Saturday, Nov. 26. That is the effective date of a Civil Aeronautics Board decision authorizing 11 nonscheduled or supplemental airlines to enter the foreign charter-flight field. Americans who have yearned to visit Europe but could not afford the air fare will now be able to do so.

The prospective savings in air fare and related expenses are startling. One supplemental carrier calculates that it could offer a two-week package tour of Europe for $440, with all expenses except meals included. The lowest economy air fare to Europe and back on an international carrier now stands at $300.

The CAB's motives for widening the horizons of supplemental airlines were various. For one thing, the decision exerted indirect pressure on American and foreign international carriers to lower their fares. But a desire to narrow the tourist dollar gap may have been a more compelling reason. Foreign as well as American tourists are expected to take advantage of the low-priced tours to be offered by the supplementals. The dollars they spend will stay in this country instead of adding to foreign claims on American gold reserves.

One big "if" could scuttle the whole undertaking. Supplemental airlines wishing to take advantage of the CAB decision must first acquire landing rights from the foreign governments involved. These rights could be hard to get if foreign international carriers, whose business would be affected, objected strenuously enough.

SAXON'S GOODBY

Five controversial years of public service came to a close on Tuesday, Nov. 15, when James J. Saxon concluded his term as Comptroller of the Currency. The banking business will never be the same again.

President Johnson has named as Saxon's successor William B. Camp, who had been First Deputy Comptroller. Camp is a Saxon man, and his appointment was on Saxon's recommendation. Nevertheless, the feeling in the banking community is that Camp will be an easier man to get along with.

Saxon, by contrast, shook the cobwebs off the banking establishment. He chartered 500 or so new banks, allowed the 4,800 national banks to open new branches by the hundreds--more than 3,000--and made more than 6,000 changes in the procedures and rules by which banks conduct business. Although his office was the oldest regulatory agency of government, 105 years old, it was relatively obscure when he was appointed by President Kennedy five years ago. Not a working banker, Saxon had been an attorney with the First National Bank of Chicago.

Because of Saxon, largely, banks today are running travel agencies, selling insurance, servicing mortgages, running mutual funds, and offering factoring services. His office is now involved in more than 40 lawsuits throughout the country and six antitrust actions.

In a kind of swan song, Saxon gave his philosophy of banking before the American Bankers Association on Oct. 24. "We have found no considerations of the public welfare," he said, "which would justify the outright exclusion of banks from the performance of any financial function." Saxon stressed the "any."

LABELING THE PILL

A woman shopping for oral contraceptives can choose among eight brands, all of which contain roughly the same ingredients. The trouble is that the prescription labels on the eight brands are all different, even though each was approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

After due consideration, the FDA has opted for uniformity in labeling. An order handed down on Nov. 13 required identical directions on existing birth control pills and on those yet to be approved for sale. Manufacturers of the pills have until Sunday, Nov. 27, to file papers signifying their intention to conform with the order.

The FDA order will prohibit manufacturers from making therapeutic claims for their products. All labels will warn lactating women against taking oral contraceptives. Moreover, they will recommend non-use by women with a history of clotting, liver disease, or breast or genital cancer.

In time, the birth control pill may seem crude and old-fashioned. Pill-swallowing may be supplanted by once-a-month or once-a-year injections. Or refinements of the intra-uterine "loop" may win greater favor. Even today, though, oral contraceptives are given most of the credit for the declining U.S. birth rate, which is as low now - about 19 births per 1,000 population - as it was in the depths of the Great Depression.

THE VIGOROUS LIFE

Team physicians and others interested in sports medicine will meet in Las Vegas on Sunday, Nov. 27, to consider medical problems at all levels of athletic competition. The meeting is in conjunction with the American Medical Association's four-day clinical convention.

The most dramatic evidence of the hazards of sport at the moment is found in the shortage of professional football quarterbacks. Half a dozen have been put out for the season. Inasmuch as modern football makes the quarterback the piston of the team machine, the slogan of the defense is quite frankly, "Get the quarterback." The New York Giants, incidentally, have set some kind of a record with nine knee operations so far this season.

More disturbing than what is happening to the pros, however, is what goes on in schools and colleges. Last year during the early hot days of football practice, there were six deaths in the United States from heat exhaustion and heat stroke. These fatalities accounted for nearly 15 per cent of the total deaths from football in 1965.

The continuing argument between prohibition of dangerous sports and wide participation in all forms of athletics will probably never be settled, though the latter attitude seems to prevail more and more. John F. Kennedy as president-elect probably spoke for his generation in the Dec. 26, 1960 issue of Sports Illustrated when he wrote: "We do not want our children to become a generation of spectators. Rather, we want each of them to be a participant in the vigorous life."

NEW YORK (AP) — Things to be thankful for in an anxious time:

The happy sounds of childhood echoing from another room. Oyster dressing and pumpkin pie. The brown and steaming turkey. The sweet sad thoughts for ones no longer at the table.

All remembrances of April. Belts that buckle and people who don't. The excited barking of frolicking dogs. The rush of impatient feet on the pavement hurrying to the harbor of waiting arms. The surprise, after asking for someone missing, and finding that that someone is there after all.

The opening of all doors that lead to joy. The unpeeling splendor of the stars in the cold glory of a winter night, glittering like peepholes into heaven. The feel of oak bark and the prickling thrill of a pine cone gripped in the hand.

All the thronging odors of nature in a time-warmed land. The lapping of endless waters. The kindling happiness of sharing a loved one's brag.

The groaning ecstasy of trees tormented by capricious winds. The color comparison of autumn and the fruitful thoughts that lie in fallen leaves—a carpet of crisp. All letters of the English alphabet except X. The solidity of massive buildings dated with the simple grandeur of Roman numerals.

Walking across a bridge toward something unknown on the other side. The unctuous peril of whipped cream, forbidden calories in froth. The purring of please cats, and the marching trot of any music by Mozart.

Finding the right letter in the wrong office file. Tapping a foot to the tune piped in from lord-knows - where in the office elevator. Saying a glad goodby to someone you'll be glad to say hello to real soon again. The confidence of expectation. Watching a high-up window cleaner massage the portholes of a skyscraper, one man against a concrete mass.

Seeing sunlight break out on a small boy's face after a torrent of sobs. The healing of all hurts, large or small. The staccato thrum of banjo strings, merry a silver moonbeams. Opening a telegram and finding the news is good.

Coming out of a hospital by the same door wherein you went. The pawing of each other by scuffling zoo bears at play. Letting teen - age children think they can really outrace you up lanes that lead to home. The plain elegance of vanilla ice cream, and one freckle on a snub nose. The completeness of the Statue of Liberty, a nation's moving creed in moveless metal. The cherishing of simple delights that bear no price tag.

A wife's face by candlelight. Calming with a cup of water a sleepy child's terror of the dark. Counting the green exposions of a budding bough outside the window in spring. The white thrill of responding sails. The resonance of man's best hopes and dreams.

All causes worth sacrifice. The mystery of the power that throbs the universe through every twilight and the majesty of every new - born morning.

For all this and more, thanks.

WASHINGTON -- Selective service officials have been considering the complaints made by congressmen that the present draft system of deferring college students is discriminatory. The congress point out that poor boys who can't afford education are drafted while those who can afford to go to college are not.

Draft officials reply that more people are deferred for lack of education than for higher education. The number of boys turned down because they lack public -school background or are otherwise mentally deficient is a long and alarming one. Statistically, they claim, the present induction requirements favor the poor and uneducated not the wealthy.

At any rate, it's almost certain that college students who keep their grades up will definitely be deferred from the draft for the remainder of the school year. This policy will probably also continue in effect during the 1967-68 school year.

H. L. Hunt Says

FIRST SOCIALIST SETTLEMENT IN AMERICA

With the coming of the Pilgrims to the New England coast in 1620, Plymouth Colony was established as the first Socialist settlement in America.

What is generally ignored, overlooked and unknown about this communal experiment is that it failed miserably within three years time. For their very survival, the Pilgrims had to turn to what we call the personal enterprise system, or capitalism.

Before landing, the Pilgrims entered into the Plymouth Compact which set up the community on a share-the-wealth basis. Nobody owned anything. Whatever was produced belonged to the community as a whole. They called the system "the commone course and condition," and lived under it until the hungry spring of 1623. Then they changed to capitalism.

The shift was explained by William Bradford, one of the leading original Pilgrims and second governor of the Colony, who wrote that the socialist experiment bred confusion and retarded employment. He explained that the young men who were most able and fit for labor did little work, complaining about spending their time and strength working for other men's wives and children, without recompense.

Instead of a Thanksgiving feast in the fall of 1622, there was literal starvation. Thereafter, Bradford gave a parcel of land to each family and instructed every man to plant his own corn. This experiment in personal enterprise proved highly successful. All hands were busy, the people content, and there was much food.

In the fall of 1623 the Pilgrams held a great Thanksgiving feast and offered thanks for deliverance from Socialism. Are we today wiser than our Pilgrim fathers who rejected Socialism?

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Adventure in Electronics: Ambassador Sol Linowitz Proposses New Trans-Ocean 'People's Corps'.

On Thanksgiving Day, when virtually all of America sits at tables abundant in food and devotion, prosperity and security, there are peoples abroad who look to us -- and not to the totalitarians -- to help lift them from their poverty.

How can they be helped along the road? For an answer I turned to Sol Linowitz, an industrialist who has new and venturesome thoughts on old problems -- for his is a new mind on an ancient scene. Here is his answer:

By Sol M. Linowitz
U.S. Ambassador to the Organization of American States

Washington, D. C.: -- The time has come for government, industry, agriculture and labor to join forces to create a great new "People's Corps." Such a corps would insure that our exploding new technology is put to effective use throughout the world.

A united effort by the four major segments of the American economy to spread the technological revolution to all parts of the earth could contribute enormously to a sounder basis for world peace and prosperity. An American "People's Corps" could become the strongest program yet devised for person-to-person international aid and cooperation.

A "People's Corps" team would go into an emerging nation or one with a semi-sophisticated economy and technology on an invitation from the country. It would make available knowledge and information that would immediately be put to effective use.

The only limitation would be on ability to translate imagination into practicality.

A complete collection of all written American knowledge soon may be housed in a single microfilm library no larger than present conventional libraries. We already have machines that instantly print out in readable size type from microfilm negatives.

In the not-too-distant future, any kind of information could be flashed on demand from a central microfilm library and made accessible anywhere in the world.

When an agronomist in India needs information to save a wheat crop capable of feeding thousands of people, we can provide that information quickly and accurately.

Seven thousand school children in the lovely South Pacivic islands comprising American Samoa receive elementary education by means of a General Electric educatorial television network. This strong beginning could be expanded into a mighty "People's Corps" tool to erase illiteracy in emerging areas.

IBM data processing equipment is cutting months off census-taking time in Botswana. This emerging African nation urgently needs a foolproof shortcut to complete population and related information to plan for education and economic development.

Other IBM computers phenomenally have speeded up flood control in Guyana; malnutrition-destroying food additive development in Guatemala, Mexico and the Congo, and irrigation in Pakistan.

These are but a few of contributions abroad made by American industry on an individual basis. A "People's Corps," through coordination and dedication, could multiply such contributions to a waiting world.

We hear too much about what our new technology may do to enslave man and not enough about what it may do to liberate him.

In and of itself technology is amoral. It becomes good or bad depending upon what you do with it.

An automobile can transport you or kill you; so can an airplane. Atomic energy can blow us up or give us unlimited energy to reach unlimited horizons. Television can bring us Pablo Casals or "Peyton Place."

So the first challenge of modern technology is how to use it to accomplish what we want.

Advances in technology have meant reduction of hunger and disease, abolition of slavery, relief of bondage, extension of human life. They have led to improvements in human welfare and the alleviation of human and social needs.

Dr. Grayson Kirk, president of Columbia University, has pointed out that 90 per cent of the medical prescriptions being written today could not have been filled 20 years ago because the ingredients were then unknown.

There are methods to communicate faster than ever before, to spread truth more quickly, to bring aid more effectively, to advance progress and civilization more effectively. Data storage and processing systems today not only compile and store information but also make it available throughout the world on demand. These systems meet human needs, help to develop underdeveloped areas and inform the uninformed.

If Communism does indeed thrive on ignorance and misery, then this technology properly harnessed can become a massive bulkwark against its spread.

Even more significant is what the new technology will mean to education. One thing is certain. Advanced technology depends on the educated man to create it, to make it work and to improve it.

The narrow craftsman trained in his "splinter specialty" will no longer be able to manage things in a technological society. Progress in this kind of society will depend more on education than on all the other traditional criteria -- family, social position, inheritance, and the like.

Only the properly educated will be qualified to understand and to take the responsibility for decisions in a democratic society.

One magnificent by-product of the new technology, should, therefore, be to impel us toward a far better educated, and therefore, a stronger democratic society than ever before. It will demand governmental representatives able to deal wisely with the complex problems of the new age in such areas as space, atomic energy, defense, regulation of industry, commerce, labor, and the whole world around us.

An educated democratic society will be less apt to be intimidated by the name-caller, the tub-thumper, the breast-beater, the rumor-monger.

There are and will continue to be unfortunate and undesirable consequences of advances in technology. People have been and will continue to be thrown out of work.

But the great overriding reality is that technology is a substitute not for men but for the "machine work" that so often dehumanizes their labor and makes their lives drudgery.

Perhaps, as machines take over "machine work," people will be released to take over "people work" in a world where millions of people desperately need the help of millions of other people in developing even fundamental technical skills. In that sense, technology could become not a force riding man but a force liberating man, freeing him to reach out a helping hand to those who need what he can give.

This is the challenge that should generate in American "People's Corps."

Mrs. Patrick Thomas Gresham

Miss Mary Tinsley Pledges Vows With Patrick Gresham

In a setting of flowers and candlelight the wedding of Miss Mary Charles Tinsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tinsley, and Patrick Thomas Gresham was solemnized Nov. 13, in the First Baptist church at 3 p.m. The Rev. Harley W. Chaney performed the ceremony.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Douglas of Paducah.

Gracing the chancel for the service were arrangements of pink spider chrysanthemums with massed greenery in the background. A white kneeling bench centered the scene, which was illumined by pink tapers in cathedral candelabra.

The program of nuptial music was presented by Jim Rhodes of Cape Girardeau.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a formal gown of taffeta peau de soie fashioned in a controlled silhouette with a slightly scooped neckline, crescent waistline and long fitted sleeves tapering to points at the hands. Sprays of crystal beads and teardrops etched the bodice front and back. The watteau chapel train swept from the back waistline where it was attached with a tailored bow. The bride's elbow-length veil of illusion fell from a half crown of petite taffeta bows frosted with pearls. Her bouquet was designed of white gardenias enhanced with lace and white satin steamers.

Mrs. Shirley Gregory was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Bill Feezor, also a sister of the bride, Miss Gloria Blackwell and Miss Susan Warren. Serving as junior bridesmaid was Dot Tinsley, sister of the bride. The honor attendant was attired in a floor-length gown of American Beauty rose crepe with a matching rose Dior headpiece. She carried a bouquet of pale pink baby mums. The bridesmaids wore gowns and headpieces identical to those of the honor attendant except they were in pale pink and they carried bouquets of baby mums in an American Beauty shade of rose. The junior bridesmaid was dressed like a honor attendant and carried a similar bouquet.

The flower girl, Toni Burke, wore a floor-length dress of white angel mist taffeta and scattered pink rose petals in the path of the bride.

Michael Hernon, cousin of the groom, attended Gresham as best man. Acting as ushers were Bill Feezor, Charles Tinsley and Charles Werner. Clay Finley served as ring bearer.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Tinsley wore a rose knit ensemble with black accessories and a corsage of pink orchids. The groom's mother chose a brown knit costume with matching accessories and a shoulder corsage of bronze-toned orchids.

A reception was held after the wedding, at the Country Club with Mrs. James J. Reeves as table hostess. The table was overlaid with pink organdy over pink satin and had as a central decoration an arrangement of pink mums and pink candles in gold-colored candelabra.

A four-tiered cake graced one end of the table and was served by Miss Carol Fidler. At the other end was the punch bowl. Miss Linda Kay Bone served the punch, mints and nuts.

After the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to the Lake of the Ozarks. The bride's going away costume was a blue wool coach dress. Pinned at her shoulder was a white gardenia corsage.

Mrs. and Mrs. Gresham will be at home in the Meadow Brook Apartments in Cape Girardeau.

Trinity WMU Meets Nov. 16

The Woman's Missionary Union of the Trinity Baptist church met after prayer meeting on Nov. 16, with 14 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. M. L. Limbaugh called the meeting to order and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved by the group. New business was called for and each chairman reported the progress being made within the group for which she is responsible. Announcements for the month were that the book study, "Beneath The Himalayas" by Jasper L. McPhail, would be given at the church on Thursday, Nov. 17. Week of prayer for Foreign Missions will be Dec. 14 through 11 and the day circle meeting every afternoon at the home of Mrs. Truman Bennett and night circle meeting with Mrs. James Beaird. The goal for the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering will be $500. Business meeting was adjourned by Mrs. Limbaugh.

Mrs. Truman Bennett gave the call to prayer for the month and led in prayer for the missionaries having birthdays during the month. The program, "Baptist of Japan," was given by Mrs. Beaird, in the absence of Mrs. Bryan Snider. Through the use of charts and maps Mrs. Beaird told what the Soka Gakkai movement in Japan is and how Baptists are witnessing there. The session was concluded with the devotional thoughts and Mrs. Sherman Grant gave the closing prayer.

Trinity WMU Meets Nov. 16

The Woman's Missionary Union of the Trinity Baptist church met after prayer meeting on Nov. 16, with 14 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. M. L. Limbaugh called the meeting to order and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved by the group. New business was called for and each chairman reported the progress being made within the group for which she is responsible. Announcements for the month were that the book study, "Beneath The Himalayas" by Jasper L. McPhail, would be given at the church on Thursday, Nov. 17. Week of prayer for Foreign Missions will be Dec. 14 through 11 and the day circle meeting every afternoon at the home of Mrs. Truman Bennett and night circle meeting with Mrs. James Beaird. The goal for the Lottie Moon Christmas Offering will be $500. Business meeting was adjourned by Mrs. Limbaugh.

Mrs. Truman Bennett gave the call to prayer for the month and led in prayer for the missionaries having birthdays during the month. The program, "Baptist of Japan," was given by Mrs. Beaird, in the absence of Mrs. Bryan Snider. Through the use of charts and maps Mrs. Beaird told what the Soka Gakkai movement in Japan is and how Baptists are witnessing there. The session was concluded with the devotional thoughts and Mrs. Sherman Grant gave the closing prayer.

Bob Larson

Bob Larson to Conduuct Evangelistic Services

Evangelist Bob Larson of McCook, Neb. will conduct services Sunday through Dec. 4 at the First Assembly of God church, 310 South Kingshighway.

Services will be at 7 p.m. on Sundays and 7:30 p.m. on other nights.

Larson began writing music when he was 13 and by the time he was 15 had his own rock and roll combo. In addition to being a guitarist and singer, he worked as a radio announcer and disc jockey while writing rock and roll music professionally.

In March, 1963, he committed his life to Christ. While studying pre-medical courses, Larson was called to full-time Christian service. In the summer of 1964, Larson gave up a potential medical profession to enter a full-time evangelistic ministry.

Evangelist Larson ministers through the use of word and song. He has over $2,000 worth of musical equipment and part of his accompaniment is by means of a pre-recorded four-track stereo tape system. He is a singer, guitarist and composer.

Cowboys Take Lead With 26-14 Win

By DICK COUCH

Don Meredith is calling his shots again and the Dallas Cowboys are drawing a bead on their first division title in the National Football League.

Meredith, intercepted four times in an early-season loss to Cleveland, picked the Browns' defense apart Thursday, driving the Cowboys to a 26-14 victory that sent them into first place in the NFL's Eastern Division stretch race.

The victory moved Dallas one-half game ahead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals, who take on improved Pittsburgh Sunday without No. 1 quarterback Charley Johnson, who's out for the year with a damaged knee.

Meredith completed 16 of 24 passes for 131 yards and one touchdown, directed another touchdown drive and set up two of Danny Villaneuva's four field goals with his passing and running. "I thought Meredith called a great game," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "He mixed his plays very well and kept a balanced game going."

The Dallas signal - caller is confident they'll nail their first division crown since coming into the NFL six years ago. "We except to win it," he said. "We have three games to go and we'll just have to win them all."

The Cowboys, 8-2-1, entertain St. Louis and Washington at home before winding up their schedule at New York Dec. 18.

In the NFL's other Thanksgiving Day tussle, John Brodie led the San Francisco 49ers to a 41-14 triumph over the Detroit Lions.

Sunday, in addition to the Steelers-Cardinals scrap at St. Louis, the Green Bay Packers are at Minnesota, the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore, the Atlanta Falcons at Chicago and the Giants at Washington.

Dallas, beaten seven straight times by the Browns and 11 times in 12 previous meetings, overcame a 14-13 halftime deficit Thursday to hand the defending Eastern Champions their fourth setback in 11 starts. Villaneuva booted 12 and 13-yard field goals in the third quarter and Don Perkins, who carried for 111 yards in all, capped a 69-fourth- quarter march with a 10-yard scoring jaunt.

Meredith's six - yard payoff pitch to Dan Reeves in the second quarter was his 23rd TD pass of the season -- tops in the league.

Leroy Kelly, who led the Cleveland, ball - carriers with 115 yards, plunged a yard for the Browns' first touchdown and Frank Ryan passed 16 yards to Ernie Green for the other.

San Francisco's Brodie passed 24 yards to Dave Kopay for one touchdown and 45 yards to Dave Parks for another, and Kopay scrambled 32 yards for a third score with a fumbled punt runback.

The victory gave the 49ers a 5-4-2 season mark, keeping alive their slim hopes for the Western Division title. Green Bay leads the West with an 8-2 record.

Helms Nails Down NL Rookie Prize

NEW YORK AP -- Tommy Helms of the Cincinnati Reds, a shortstop in the minors, a second basement in the spring and a third basement in the summer, has been named National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

A 20-man committee, composed of two writers from each National League city, gave Helms 12 votes.

Sonny Jackson, Houston shortstop, was second with three votes, followed by Tito Fuentes, San Francisco shortstop, with two votes. The remaining votes were divided among Cleon Jones, New York Mets' center fielder; Randy Hundley, Chicago Cubs' catcher, and Larry Jaster, St. Louis pitcher. Each got one.

The American League Rookie of the Year, named Wednesday, was Tommie Agee, Chicago White Sox center fielder.

Although Helms was a star shortstop in the minors, he moved to second base last spring. Don Heffner, then the manager, had Leo Cardenas at short and decided to switch Pete Rose to third and play Helms at second.

Bills Help Chiefs in 31-10 Win

OAKLAND, Calif. AP -- Oakland's Raiders tell you it's tough to run against the Buffalo Bills who've moved closer to top honors a third straight year in the American Football league.

In a game billed as a must for both Buffalo and Oakland on Thanksgiving Day, it was the Bills by a 37-10 count after their defense provided the straight victory.

Deadlocked 7-7, quarterback Tom Flores hit end Art Powell with a 35-yard pass reaching the Buffalo 1. Oakland's Mike Eischeid kicked a field goal but the Bills evened the count and went ahead by halftime.

Victory for Buffalo virtually assured Kansas City the title in the West since the Chiefs stand 8-2-1 while the second place Raiders dropped to 7-5.

Buffalo went to 8-3-1 and a solid lead over Boston which stands 5-3-2 and New York at 5-4-1.

In games Sunday, San Diego plays at Denver, Kansas City at New York and Boston at Miami. Buffalo meets Boston on Dec. 4 on the Patriots home field in what could be the Eastern decider.

The Raiders netted only 58 yards rushing against the big Buffalo forward wall while fullback Wray Carlton alone ran for 97 against the Raiders. He scored two touchdowns, on runs of 11 and 2 yards.

The New York Jets face a must win situation against the Kansas City Chiefs to their Sunday setto at Shea Stadium. A defeat would be the fifth for the Jets and virtually knock them out of contention in the Eastern Division.

Boston is favored to stay in second place back of Buffalo by beating the Dolphins at Miami. San Diego similarly is favored to beat Denver in the other Sunday game. Houston is idle this week.

Punters to Perform In Mineral Bowl

EXCELSIOR PRINGS, Mo. AP - The 18th annual mineral Water football game Saturday will see two of the nation's leading punters oppose each other.

Donny Cockroft of Adams State at Alamosa, Colo., leads the nation's college and university division punters with an average of 48 yards. Pat Hogan of Southwest Missouri State at Springfield, Mo., has a 45.7-yard average.

Adams State is 7-2 for the season, Springfield 7-3.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Army Navy Stand by; Sooners Nip Huskers

By HAL BOCK

Army and Navy clash in their traditional battle at Philadelphia Saturday while Notre Dame risks its somewhat shaky No. 1 rating and Georgia Tech exposes its perfect record in other key games.

The Irish, who held on to the top spot in The Associated Press poll by a slim three points over Michigan State after trying the Spartans Rose Bowl - bound Southern California at Los Angeles.

Georgia Tech, winner of nine straight, ranked fifth and headed for the Orange Bowl, faces Georgia, which is 8-1 and set for a Cotton Bowl date with the Southwest Conference champion. The Bulldogs are ranked seventh.

Oklahoma took some of the edge off fourth-ranked Nebraska's Sugar Bowl appointment with Alabama by snapping the Cornhuskers' nine game winning streak 10-9 on Mike Vachon's last -minute field goal Thursday.

In other games on Thanksgiving Day, Texas clinched a Bluebonnet Bowl berth with a 22-14 victory over Texas A&M, Virginia Tech walloped Virginia Military 70-12, Villanova and Tulsa defeated Wichita 47-14.

Vachon, who had missed a 33-yard field goal try in the first half and a 23-yard attempt early in the fourth quarter, booted the winning three - pointer 21 yards on fourth down with just 48 seconds left to play.

Oklahoma Coach Jim MacKenzie said he had told Vachon not to be upset after missing the 23-yard attempt.

"Don't get your spirits down, we'll get you another chance," the coach told his sophomore kicker.

Dick Davis had plunged two yards for the third quarter touchdown that gave Nebraska the lead but Bobby Stephenson blocked Larry Wachholtz' extra point attempt, giving Oklahoma the chance to come back.

Sophomores Chris Gilbert and Bill Bradley led Texas past Texas A&M. Gilbert ran for 137 yards and Bradley passed for one touchdown and ran for another. David Conway kicked two field goals for the Longhorns.

Texas will try to top Thursday's triumph when it faces Mississippi in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 17 at Houston.

Army carries a 7-2 record into Saturday's game against Navy, which has a so-so 4-5 slate. Coach Bill Elias of the Middies expects no repetition of last year's 7-7 tie in which both he and Army Coach Paul Dietzel, who has since moved to South Carolina, called the plays from the bench.

"It resulted in a very dull game," said Elias, "and I vowed it wouldn't happen again," said Elias.

Notre Dame and Southern California will both be using second - string quarterbacks. Coley O'Brian will call the signals for the Irish, replacing Terry Hanratty, who was hurt early in the Michigan State game. USC's Troy Winslow, who hurt his leg in last week's 14-7 loss to UCLA, will be replaced by Toby Page.

East Carolina plays at Louisville in the only game scheduled for tonight. Other games Saturday include Holy Cross at Boston College, Virginia at North Carolina, Tennessee at Vanderbilt, Southern Methodist at Texas Christian, Rice at Baylor and Miami at Florida.

Football One Big Picnic To Giggling Tom Day

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(NEA)— Rookie offensive linemen who play against the Buffalo Bills the first time are seen whispering and pointing.

"What's with that nut playing end?" they will ask. "He giggles."

The veterans all know about the giggling and so the name of the game against the Buffalo defense is to wipe the grin off Tom Day's face.

The other three of the Bills front four — Roland McDole (264), Jim Dunaway (276) and Tom Sestak (270)— wear the usual scowls and present their usual imposing problems.

But Day (260) plays it differently.

"First of all," Day said seriously, "this game is so much fun I can't keep from laughing. Playing defense I can't wait for the next play to start so I can crack somebody.

"I especially like to bust cry babies—the guys who only play pro football to pick up their checks every week and pray for the season to end.

"Quarterbacks are my favorites. When I watch one coming out of the huddle, it's like looking at a cold beer on a hot day."

Day is having perhaps his best season in seven as a pro lineman. And the Bills defensive unit, beginning slowly this year, has become the American Football League's best, especially the front four led by Day and Sestak.

The clue as to whether Day thinks an opposing player is a man or a cry baby is seen in his behavior after he has cracked somebody.

He will offer his hand to help the guy up and then compliment him and give him a whack on the rump. Likely as not the one cracked will say something like, "Good job, Tom." Otherwise Day walks away.

"It's the same when one of them makes me look bad," he said. "You won't find me lying there crying about it. I don't even mind them laughing at me because they only laugh knowing they don't see me get busted very often."

Two of Day's favorites are Joe Namath and George Blanda, quarterbacks of the New York Jets and Houston Oilers. He says both are real men.

If Day can get to either of them two or three times a game he is satisfied with his own performance. When it happens, it may appear to the crowd or television viewers that Day and the quarterback are exchanging angry words but, says Day, "We're only complimenting each other."

However, a few fellow hardnoses of the AFL criticize Day for overdoing it, charging that getting too friendly out there suppresses the killer instinct or that Day's eagerness to nail a guy incurs too many penalties.

Buffalo coaches and supporters don't mind it because they know Tom Day. Through him, Buffalo people recently were told what makes another controversial player, Jets defensive back Johnny Sample, play the way he does.

"Why are you always chattering at opposing players or making vicious tackles when all you have to do is bump the runner out of bounds?" a Buffalo writer asked Sample.

"Friend," Sample smiled back, "I just play the game like your Tom Day."

Elks Club Boxers to Open Tomorrow in Memphis

The Elks club boxing team is scheduled to make its seasonal debut against strong teams from Memphis, and Jackson, Miss., in matches beginning at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the National Guard Armory on Central Avenue near the Fairgrounds in Memphis.

Returning from last year's banner season in which they placed second in the St. Louis regional tournament and emerged as team champions in the Southern Illinois tourney at Cairo, the Sikeston Jaycee-Southeast Missouri tourney and the Illinois state tourney at Springfield, the Sikeston fighters will be pitted against rugged 12-man teams from Memphis and Jackson.

The Sikeston team has been in training approximately six weeks at the Elks club and again is directed by Mike Blacker, coach; Ray Hart, assistant coach; and John Miller, trainer.

Among the fighters making the trip with the Sikeston team will be Eugene Richards, the 1966 St. Louis Golden Gloves tournament heavyweight champion; James Harrington, 165-pound Illinois state tourney champion; and Emory McCauley, 118-pound Illinois state winner.

Other team members making the trip will be Henry Marshall, Eddie Marshall, Roy Green, Tommy Green, Greg Harrington, Leroy McCauley, Jerry Moten, Terry Patterson, Undra West and Sylvester Murphy.

Blacker says a busy schedule is being lined up and that he hopes for another successful season.

Instead of putting ice into drinks, a Dutch inventor's idea of reversing the practice yielded one of the most imaginative and novel objects ever patented: a goblet made of ice. His unique crystalware appeared in 1908 and created an international stir in the refrigeration and beverage-dispensing industries. Produced by freezing water around molds in a special machine, the goblet looked like an ordinary drinking glass 5 inches tall, with sides 3/16th-inch thick and a 3/8th-inch bottom. Surprisingly, while chilling its contents it gave 20 minutes' drinking time before melting. It was sanitary and self-disposable. The user held it in a fitted paper cup. But ironically it wasn't the ice goblet that became popular. The paper cup that held it -- cheaper and handier than the goblet itself -- helped to prove that paper alone could be a practical container for liquids. Today the paper cup is universal and the ice goblet is forgotten.

A-State Caps 7-2 Season on High Note

JONESBORO - Arkansas State completed one of its most surprising seasons Saturday with a 20-7 triumph over Trinity University, giving the Indians a 7-2 record and a rating among the top 10 college division teams in the nation.

Before the campaign opened in September, many of the Tribe's most avid supporters gave the Redmen little chance to have a winning year. The Indians were picked to finish in the cellar in the Southland Conference by a poll of coaches.

Only 12 lettermen returned and Coach Bennie Ellender and his staff had a major rebuilding project on their hands.

Evidence of the success of the project was immediate as the Indians smashed a good Tennessee Tech eleven 49-13 in the season opener. Four more victories followed as the Indians outscored the opposition at a record rate of 179-48 for the initial five games and achieved a lofty rating among the wire service polls.

The Indian's inexperience and injuries caught up with them in conference battles as Lamar Tech shattered A-State's bubble 17-0 and Arlington State upended the Tribe 16-6.

Two of the victories came as upsets over Southwestern Louisiana (17-14), a team which whipped Lamar Tech 13-6, and the season finale over Trinity, an offensive powderkeg that had stunned Lamar 23-14 and Abilene Christian 37-27 prior to the contest with A-State.

The 1966 season was one of a record-breaking spree for the Redmen as they bettered nine school records, including six individual marks. The passing combination of Tim Keane and Gerald Jumper accounted for all the new marks.

Jumper cracked three of former All-American Alfred Bentley's pass receiving standards. Jumper's 32 receptions topped Bentley's mark of 28 set in 1959. The Helena junior also established single game marks for passes caught (9) and yards (168) against Tennessee Tech. Bentley and Bill Pagano of the 1963 Indians held the marks.

Keane, a junior from Linden, N.J., completed 70 of 158 passes for 1,015 yards to better three of former All-American Bill Caldwell's records. Caldwell's marks were 62 pass completions in 132 attempts and 959 yards during the 1959 season.

The passing of Keane along with that of quarterback Kevin McClelland and halfbacks Terry Gwin and Benny Winford accounted for 1,289 yards on 85 completions in 190 attempts. The 1959 team held all three of these standards.

Although this year's Indian runners did not break school rushing records, halfback Gwin established a new SLC rushing mark with 607 yards on 135 carries. The Memphis, Tenn., senior scored nine touchdowns for 54 points.

Fullback Steve Gankiewicz gained 534 yards and broke the conference scoring mark by 12 by tallying 13 touchdowns for 78 points.

A-State's prospects are bright as only three seniors will be lost from the squad via graduation. They are linebacker Truman Moore, monster man Bryan Caplinger and Gwin. The 1967 Indian squad will have some 25 lettermen.

LIMIT HOLIDAY WORK

Homemakers with ingenuity can find opportunities to create a festive atmosphere and hold their chores to a minimum during the holiday season. For example, paper tableware with attractive Christmas and New Year designs add to the general gaiety and cut down your cleaning chores at the same time, suggests B. W. Miller, an F. W. Woolworth Co. buyer. Matched ensemble sets are available for both holidays complete with table cover. Colorful poinsettias decorated one ensemble, a laughing Santa Claus another. Use of red or green candles to decorate the table and red, white or green flameproof streamers to decorate the room.

Arkansas State Grabs No. 6 Rating

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tennessee State made a final bid Thursday for top ranking in The Associated Press' small-college football poll, but it will have to wait until Saturday to see if it paid off.

The Tigers, ranked No. 2 in this week's poll of sports writers and sports casters, completed an unbeaten 9-0 season by mauling Kentucky State 83-0.

Now it is San Diego State's turn. The Aztecs, 9-0, easily retained the No. 1 spot, but must get by Los Angeles State Saturday.

San Diego polled 11 first-place votes and 137 points after beating Northern Arizona 16-8 last Saturday. Tennessee State had two top votes and 97 points in the poll taken before its Thanksgiving Day romp and after it whipped Allen 39-6 last week.

Morehead State received the only other first place vote, but finished down the list in the voting on the basis of 10 points for first place, nine for second, etc.

The Nos. 3 and 4 teams, Montana State, 8-2, with 83 points, and Northwestern Louisiana State 9-0, with 64, retained their positions.

Arkansas State, 7-2, moved into the Top Ten at the sixth spot by beating Trinity, Tex., 20-7 for a 7-2 mark. Parsons, 9-1, 21-10 winner over Hawaii, took over fifth from Weber State, 6-3, which lost 42-12 to Idaho, a major school. Weber State was 10th.

Muskingum, 9-0, moved up a notch to No. 7, as North Dakota, 7-2, fell to eighth, and North Dakota State, 8-2, remained ninth.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parenthese, and total points:

1.	San Diego St. (11)	137
2.	Tennessee St. (2)	97
3.	Montana St.	83
5'	Parsons	61
6.	Arkansas St.	39
7.	Muskingum	33
8.	North Dakota	30
9.	North Dakota St.	23
10.	Weber St.	22

Cowboys Take Lead With 26-14 Win

By DICK COUCH

Don Meredith is calling his shots again and the Dallas Cowboys are drawing a bead on their first division title in the National Football League.

Meredith, intercepted four times in an early-season loss to Cleveland, picked the Browns' defense apart Thursday, driving the Cowboys to a 26-14 victory that sent them into first place in the NFL's Eastern Division stretch race.

The victory moved Dallas one-half game ahead of the idle St. Louis Cardinals, who take on improved Pittsburgh Sunday without No. 1 quarterback Charley Johnson, who's out for the year with a damaged knee.

Meredith completed 16 of 24 passes for 131 yards and one touchdown, directed another touchdown drive and set up two of Danny Villaneuva's four field goals with his passing and running. "I thought Meredith called a great game," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "He mixed his plays very well and kept a balanced game going."

The Dallas signal-caller is confident they'll nail their first division crown since coming into the NFL six years ago. "We except to win it," he said. "We have three games to go and we'll just have to win them all."

The Cowboys, 8-2-1, entertain St. Louis and Washington at home before winding up their schedule at New York Dec. 18.

In the NFL's other Thanksgiving Day tussle, John Brodie led the San Francisco 49ers to a 41-14 triumph over the Detroit Lions.

Sunday, in addition to the Steelers-Cardinals scrap at St. Louis, the Green Bay Packers are at Minnesota, the Los Angeles Rams at Baltimore, the Atlanta Falcons at Chicago and the Giants at Washington.

Dallas, beaten seven straight times by the Browns and 11 times in 12 previous meetings, overcame a 14-13 halftime deficit Thursday to hand the defending Eastern Champions their fourth setback in 11 starts. Villaneuva booted 12 and 13-yard field goals in the third quarter and Don Perkins, who carried for 111 yards in all, capped a 69-fourth-quarter march with a 10-yard scoring jaunt.

Meredith's six-yard payoff pitch to Dan Reeves in the second quarter was his 23rd TD pass of the season -- tops in the league.

Leroy Kelly, who led the Cleveland, ball-carriers with 115 yards, plunged a yard for the Browns' first touchdown and Frank Ryan passed 16 yards to Ernie Green for the other.

San Francisco's Brodie passed 24 yards to Dave Kopay for one touchdown and 45 yards to Dave Parks for another, and Kopay scrambled 32 yards for a third score with a fumbled punt runback.

The victory gave the 49ers a 5-4-2 season mark, keeping alive their slim hopes for the Western Division title. Green Bay leads the West with an 8-2 record.

Helms Nails Down NL Rookie Prize

NEW YORK AP -- Tommy Helms of the Cincinnati Reds, a shortstop in the minors, a second basement in the spring and a third basement in the summer, has been named National League Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

A 20-man committee, composed of two writers from each National League city, gave Helms 12 votes.

Sonny Jackson, Houston shortstop, was second with three votes, followed by Tito Fuentes, San Francisco shortstop, with two votes. The remaining votes were divided among Cleon Jones, New York Mets' center fielder; Randy Hundley, Chicago Cubs' catcher, and Larry Jaster, St. Louis pitcher. Each got one.

The American League Rookie of the Year, named Wednesday, was Tommie Agee, Chicago White Sox center fielder.

Although Helms was a star shortstop in the minors, he moved to second base last spring. Don Heffner, then the manager, had Leo Cardenas at short and decided to switch Pete Rose to third and play Helms at second.

Bills Help Chiefs in 31-10 Win

OAKLAND, Calif. AP -- Oakland's Raiders tell you it's tough to run against the Buffalo Bills who've moved closer to top honors a third straight year in the American Football league.

In a game billed as a must for both Buffalo and Oakland on Thanksgiving Day, it was the Bills by a 37-10 count after their defense provided the straight victory.

Deadlocked 7-7, quarterback Tom Flores hit end Art Powell with a 35-yard pass reaching the Buffalo 1. Oakland's Mike Eischeid kicked a field goal but the Bills evened the count and went ahead by halftime.

Victory for Buffalo virtually assured Kansas City the title in the West since the Chiefs stand 8-2-1 while the second place Raiders dropped to 7-5.

Buffalo went to 8-3-1 and a solid lead over Boston which stands 5-3-2 and New York at 5-4-1.

In games Sunday, San Diego plays at Denver, Kansas City at New York and Boston at Miami. Buffalo meets Boston on Dec. 4 on the Patriots home field in what could be the Eastern decider.

The Raiders netted only 58 yards rushing against the big Buffalo forward wall while fullback Wray Carlton alone ran for 97 against the Raiders. He scored two touchdowns, on runs of 11 and 2 yards.

The New York Jets face a must win situation against the Kansas City Chiefs to their Sunday setto at Shea Stadium. A defeat would be the fifth for the Jets and virtually knock them out of contention in the Eastern Division.

Boston is favored to stay in second place back of Buffalo by beating the Dolphins at Miami. San Diego similarly is favored to beat Denver in the other Sunday game. Houston is idle this week.

Punters to Perform In Mineral Bowl

EXCELSIOR PRINGS, Mo. AP - The 18th annual mineral Water football game Saturday will see two of the nation's leading punters oppose each other.

Donny Cockroft of Adams State at Alamosa, Colo., leads the nation's college and university division punters with an average of 48 yards. Pat Hogan of Southwest Missouri State at Springfield, Mo., has a 45.7-yard average.

Adams State is 7-2 for the season, Springfield 7-3.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Army Navy Stand by; Sooners Nip Huskers

By HAL BOCK

Army and Navy clash in their traditional battle at Philadelphia Saturday while Notre Dame risks its somewhat shaky No. 1 rating and Georgia Tech exposes its perfect record in other key games.

The Irish, who held on to the top spot in The Associated Press poll by a slim three points over Michigan State after trying the Spartans Rose Bowl-bound Southern California at Los Angeles.

Georgia Tech, winner of nine straight, ranked fifth and headed for the Orange Bowl, faces Georgia, which is 8-1 and set for a Cotton Bowl date with the Southwest Conference champion. The Bulldogs are ranked seventh.

Oklahoma took some of the edge off fourth-ranked Nebraska's Sugar Bowl appointment with Alabama by snapping the Cornhuskers' nine game winning streak 10-9 on Mike Vachon's last-minute field goal Thursday.

In other games on Thanksgiving Day, Texas clinched a Bluebonnet Bowl berth with a 22-14 victory over Texas A&M, Virginia Tech walloped Virginia Military 70-12, Villanova and Tulsa defeated Wichita 47-14.

Vachon, who had missed a 33-yard field goal try in the first half and a 23-yard attempt early in the fourth quarter, booted the winning three-pointer 21 yards on fourth down with just 48 seconds left to play.

Oklahoma Coach Jim MacKenzie said he had told Vachon not to be upset after missing the 23-yard attempt.

"Don't get your spirits down, we'll get you another chance," the coach told his sophomore kicker.

Dick Davis had plunged two yards for the third quarter touchdown that gave Nebraska the lead but Bobby Stephenson blocked Larry Wachholtz' extra point attempt, giving Oklahoma the chance to come back.

Sophomores Chris Gilbert and Bill Bradley led Texas past Texas A&M. Gilbert ran for 137 yards and Bradley passed for one touchdown and ran for another. David Conway kicked two field goals for the Longhorns.

Texas will try to top Thursday's triumph when it faces Mississippi in the Bluebonnet Bowl Dec. 17 at Houston.

Army carries a 7-2 record into Saturday's game against Navy, which has a so-so 4-5 slate. Coach Bill Elias of the Middies expects no repetition of last year's 7-7 tie in which both he and Army Coach Paul Dietzel, who has since moved to South Carolina, called the plays from the bench.

"It resulted in a very dull game," said Elias, "and I vowed it wouldn't happen again," said Elias.

Notre Dame and Southern California will both be using second-string quarterbacks. Coley O'Brian will call the signals for the Irish, replacing Terry Hanratty, who was hurt early in the Michigan State game. USC's Troy Winslow, who hurt his leg in last week's 14-7 loss to UCLA, will be replaced by Toby Page.

East Carolina plays at Louisville in the only game scheduled for tonight. Other games Saturday include Holy Cross at Boston College, Virginia at North Carolina, Tennessee at Vanderbilt, Southern Methodist at Texas Christian, Rice at Baylor and Miami at Florida.

Football One Big Picnic To Giggling Tom Day

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(NEA)—Rookie offensive linemen who play against the Buffalo Bills the first time are seen whispering and pointing.

"What's with that nut playing end?" they will ask. "He giggles."

The veterans all know about the giggling and so the name of the game against the Buffalo defense is to wipe the grin off Tom Day's face.

The other three of the Bills front four—Roland McDole (264), Jim Dunaway (276) and Tom Sestak (270)—wear the usual scowls and present their usual imposing problems.

But Day (260) plays it differently.

"First of all," Day said seriously, "this game is so much fun I can't keep from laughing. Playing defense I can't wait for the next play to start so I can crack somebody.

"I especially like to bust cry babies—the guys who only play pro football to pick up their checks every week and pray for the season to end.

"Quarterbacks are my favorites. When I watch one coming out of the huddle, it's like looking at a cold beer on a hot day."

Day is having perhaps his best season in seven as a pro lineman. And the Bills defensive unit, beginning slowly this year, has become the American Football League's best, especially the front four led by Day and Sestak.

The clue as to whether Day thinks an opposing player is a man or a cry baby is seen in his behavior after he has cracked somebody.

He will offer his hand to help the guy up and then compliment him and give him a whack on the rump. Likely as not the one cracked will say something like, "Good job, Tom." Otherwise Day walks away.

"It's the same when one of them makes me look bad," he said. "You won't find me lying there crying about it. I don't even mind them laughing at me because they only laugh knowing they don't see me get busted very often."

Two of Day's favorites are Joe Namath and George Blanda, quarterbacks of the New York Jets and Houston Oilers. He says both are real men.

If Day can get to either of them two or three times a game he is satisfied with his own performance. When it happens, it may appear to the crowd or television viewers that Day and the quarterback are exchanging angry words but, says Day, "We're only complimenting each other."

However, a few fellow hardnoses of the AFL criticize Day for overdoing it, charging that getting too friendly out there suppresses the killer instinct or that Day's eagerness to nail a guy incurs too many penalties.

Buffalo coaches and supporters don't mind it because they know Tom Day. Through him, Buffalo people recently were told what makes another controversial player, Jets defensive back Johnny Sample, play the way he does.

"Why are you always chattering at opposing players or making vicious tackles when all you have to do is bump the runner out of bounds?" a Buffalo writer asked Sample.

"Friend," Sample smiled back, "I just play the game like your Tom Day."

Elks Club Boxers to Open Tomorrow in Memphis

The Elks club boxing team is scheduled to make its seasonal debut against strong teams from Memphis, and Jackson, Miss., in matches beginning at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the National Guard Armory on Central Avenue near the Fairgrounds in Memphis.

Returning from last year's banner season in which they placed second in the St. Louis regional tournament and emerged as team champions in the Southern Illinois tourney at Cairo, the Sikeston Jaycee-Southeast Missouri tourney and the Illinois state tourney at Springfield, the Sikeston fighters will be pitted against rugged 12-man teams from Memphis and Jackson.

The Sikeston team has been in training approximately six weeks at the Elks club and again is directed by Mike Blacker, coach; Ray Hart, assistant coach; and John Miller, trainer.

Among the fighters making the trip with the Sikeston team will be Eugene Richards, the 1966 St. Louis Golden Gloves tournament heavyweight champion; James Harrington, 165-pound Illinois state tourney champion; and Emory McCauley, 118-pound Illinois state winner.

Other team members making the trip will be Henry Marshall, Eddie Marshall, Roy Green, Tommy Green, Greg Harrington, Leroy McCauley, Jerry Moten, Terry Patterson, Undra West and Sylvester Murphy.

Blacker says a busy schedule is being lined up and that he hopes for another successful season.

Instead of putting ice into drinks, a Dutch inventor's idea of reversing the practice yielded one of the most imaginative and novel objects ever patented: a goblet made of ice. His unique crystalware appeared in 1908 and created an international stir in the refrigeration and beverage-dispensing industries. Produced by freezing water around molds in a special machine, the goblet looked like an ordinary drinking glass 5 inches tall, with sides 3/16th-inch thick and a 3/8th-inch bottom. Surprisingly, while chilling its contents it gave 20 minutes' drinking time before melting. It was sanitary and self-disposable. The user held it in a fitted paper cup. But ironically it wasn't the ice goblet that became popular. The paper cup that held it -- cheaper and handier than the goblet itself -- helped to prove that paper alone could be a practical container for liquids. Today the paper cup is universal and the ice goblet is forgotten.

A-State Caps 7-2 Season on High Note

JONESBORO - Arkansas State completed one of its most surprising seasons Saturday with a 20-7 triumph over Trinity University, giving the Indians a 7-2 record and a rating among the top 10 college division teams in the nation.

Before the campaign opened in September, many of the Tribe's most avid supporters gave the Redmen little chance to have a winning year. The Indians were picked to finish in the cellar in the Southland Conference by a poll of coaches.

Only 12 lettermen returned and Coach Bennie Ellender and his staff had a major rebuilding project on their hands.

Evidence of the success of the project was immediate as the Indians smashed a good Tennessee Tech eleven 49-13 in the season opener. Four more victories followed as the Indians outscored the opposition at a record rate of 179-48 for the initial five games and achieved a lofty rating among the wire service polls.

The Indian's inexperience and injuries caught up with them in conference battles as Lamar Tech shattered A-State's bubble 17-0 and Arlington State upended the Tribe 16-6.

Two of the victories came as upsets over Southwestern Louisiana (17-14), a team which whipped Lamar Tech 13-6, and the season finale over Trinity, an offensive powderkeg that had stunned Lamar 23-14 and Abilene Christian 37-27 prior to the contest with A-State.

The 1966 season was one of a record-breaking spree for the Redmen as they bettered nine school records, including six individual marks. The passing combination of Tim Keane and Gerald Jumper accounted for all the new marks.

Jumper cracked three of former All-American Alfred Bentley's pass receiving standards. Jumper's 32 receptions topped Bentley's mark of 28 set in 1959. The Helena junior also established single game marks for passes caught (9) and yards (168) against Tennessee Tech. Bentley and Bill Pagano of the 1963 Indians held the marks.

Keane, a junior from Linden, N.J., completed 70 of 158 passes for 1,015 yards to better three of former All-American Bill Caldwell's records. Caldwell's marks were 62 pass completions in 132 attempts and 959 yards during the 1959 season.

The passing of Keane along with that of quarterback Kevin McClelland and halfbacks Terry Gwin and Benny Winford accounted for 1,289 yards on 85 completions in 190 attempts. The 1959 team held all three of these standards.

Although this year's Indian runners did not break school rushing records, halfback Gwin established a new SLC rushing mark with 607 yards on 135 carries. The Memphis, Tenn., senior scored nine touchdowns for 54 points.

Fullback Steve Gankiewicz gained 534 yards and broke the conference scoring mark by 12 by tallying 13 touchdowns for 78 points.

A-State's prospects are bright as only three seniors will be lost from the squad via graduation. They are linebacker Truman Moore, monster man Bryan Caplinger and Gwin. The 1967 Indian squad will have some 25 lettermen.

LIMIT HOLIDAY WORK

Homemakers with ingenuity can find opportunities to create a festive atmosphere and hold their chores to a minimum during the holiday season. For example, paper tableware with attractive Christmas and New Year designs add to the general gaiety and cut down your cleaning chores at the same time, suggests B. W. Miller, an F. W. Woolworth Co. buyer. Matched ensemble sets are available for both holidays complete with table cover. Colorful poinsettias decorated one ensemble, a laughing Santa Claus another. Use of red or green candles to decorate the table and red, white or green flameproof streamers to decorate the room.

Arkansas State Grabs No. 6 Rating

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tennessee State made a final bid Thursday for top ranking in The Associated Press' small-college football poll, but it will have to wait until Saturday to see if it paid off.

The Tigers, ranked No. 2 in this week's poll of sports writers and sports casters, completed an unbeaten 9-0 season by mauling Kentucky State 83-0.

Now it is San Diego State's turn. The Aztecs, 9-0, easily retained the No. 1 spot, but must get by Los Angeles State Saturday.

San Diego polled 11 first-place votes and 137 points after beating Northern Arizona 16-8 last Saturday. Tennessee State had two top votes and 97 points in the poll taken before its Thanksgiving Day romp and after it whipped Allen 39-6 last week.

Morehead State received the only other first place vote, but finished down the list in the voting on the basis of 10 points for first place, nine for second, etc.

The Nos. 3 and 4 teams, Montana State, 8-2, with 83 points, and Northwestern Louisiana State 9-0, with 64, retained their positions.

Arkansas State, 7-2, moved into the Top Ten at the sixth spot by beating Trinity, Tex., 20-7 for a 7-2 mark. Parsons, 9-1, 21-10 winner over Hawaii, took over fifth from Weber State, 6-3, which lost 42-12 to Idaho, a major school. Weber State was 10th.

Muskingum, 9-0, moved up a notch to No. 7, as North Dakota, 7-2, fell to eighth, and North Dakota State, 8-2, remained ninth.

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parenthese, and total points:

1.	San Diego St. (11)	137
2.	Tennessee St. (2)	97
3.	Montana St.	83
5'	Parsons	61
6.	Arkansas St.	39
7.	Muskingum	33
8.	North Dakota	30
9.	North Dakota St.	23
10.	Weber St.	22

Hollywood Closely Watches New TV Feature Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD AP -- Can the movie industry make brand new feature movies for television and still turn a profit?

That is the question that producers are mulling over, now that the networks are feeling the need for such a product. With the dwindling of supplies of theatrical movies that have not yet been released to television, new ones will be needed.

As part of a deal with MGM, CBS will pay $800,000 apiece for 18 future films. It appears that these movies will be released in theatres first, then on television. The network reasons that the publicity of a threatrical release can only help the films' appeal for television viewers.

NBC has ordered a schedule of films from Universal for an undisclosed amount. Three of these "world premiere" films will be shown on the Tuesday Night Movie, five on Saturday night. The first appears Saturday night: "Fame is the Name of the Game," a comedy-mystery with Tony Franciosa, Jill St. John, Nanette Fabray, Lee Bowman and Jay C. Flippen.

Universal's Jennings Lang explained the economics of the features-for-television:

"We can make them for an average of a million dollars, and at that price they are economically sound. Prices for features are going up, and we can get added revenue from showing some of the films overseas; of the first ten, I'd say about four would do well in foreign theaters.

"The features are also helpful as pilots for series. Our next three are designed with that in mind - 'I Love a Mystery' with Les Crane, 'Ironside' with Raymond Burr, and 'Outsider' with Darrin McGavin or Harry Guardino."

Lang said the new features are comparable to the regular movie product with these exceptions: They won't be spectacles with mob scenes and huge sets; the films can't afford million-dollar stars like Paul Newman and Julie Andrews; nor can they hire top directors like Billy Wilder or William Wyler.

"On the other hand, I have been talking to foreign directors like Fellini, Dassin, Richardson and Godard about making films for us next year," Lang said. "I told Fellini: 'How would you like to show your Rome to 40 million Americans?' He was excited about the idea."

In at least two respects, the new features may be better on television than movies made for theaters, Lang said. Directors are instructed to frame their shots so figures on the edge of the screen won't disappear. Also, the score is edited to provide more adroit transitions for commercial breaks.

Wayne Family Plans First Viet Nam Film

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — No major movie has been made about the conflict in Viet Nam. Now the Wayne family aims to correct that condition.

Universal Pictures has announced the forthcoming production of "Green Berets," to star John Wayne with Michael Wayne as producer. Michael is the handsome 31-year-old son of John and president of Batjac Productions, which comprises the Wayne empire.

The younger Wayne reported on the Viet Nam film:

"The story is based on the Robin Moore book which has sold three million copies and created a great deal of controversy. At first we had heard that David Wolper had bought the novel, so we lost interest. But then we found out that Wolper had dropped his option, and we started negotiations to buy it.

"'The Green Berets' seemed ideal for two reasons: 1. It is a subject that is controversial and topical -- something that is on everyone's mind: 2. This is a new kind of war with a variety of new - fangled weapons that have never been shown in a movie before. The whole thing seemed to offer an excellent vehicle for my father and two other top stars."

The Waynes hired as writer James Lee Barrett, who had written the hard-hitting "The D.I." for Jack Webb and "Shenandoah," last year's Civil War film with James Stewart. The project was taken up with the Pentagon, since the film makers would need use of troops and equipment to create a convincing picture of the Viet war.

"They were extremely cooperative," said Mike Wayne of the Washington brass. "They encouraged us in the project and were happy that it was in the hands of responsible people."

Producer Wayne said he hoped to get the film into production early in 1967. It would be made mostly on location, beginning at Ft. Bragg with training of the Special Forces and continuing to a simulation of the Viet Nam terrain, the original being too hazardous for film making. Wayne suggested the Philippines or Panama might do.

The two other stars? Wayne's current hope: Lee Marvin and Steve McQueen.

To the Editor:

An attempt is underway to change the advocacy of the Republican Party as far left as the Northern wing of the Democratic Party. If this move succeeds it will have made little difference which candidates were elected November 8, and the Republican gains will be nullified. The Government has been purchasing and sending farm surpluses, sometimes deviously, to communist countries whose populaces are often starving, the fatal weakness of the communist system. When those who grow the food lack motivation they never produce it adequately, as was proven at Jamestown, Providence, and thousands of years earlier. The backbone of the Republican Party has been the farm states, but in 1964 Republican Planks offered farmers no hope whatever of an outlet for their surpluses. Republican leaders should devise a plan that freedom - loving people will not be placed in the position of helping Communist slave masters feed their people.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you and your staff for the excellent coverage your paper gave to the Veterans Day Parade and Scout Flag project. Without your support these projects would not have had the participation and success which they enjoyed. We had over 350 Scouts from the Okeechobee District participating in the Veterans Day Parade. This is the largest number of Boy Scouts ever assembled at one time and place in the history of the Okeechobee District. The Okeechobee District, as you know, comprises Scott, New Madrid and Mississippi Counties, serving 18 communities, 66 Scout Units and over 1,400 boys. With your continued support we hope to reach a goal of 1,465 Scouts and 70 Units in the Okeechobee District by December 31, 1966.

Again thank you for your continued support, your public minded attitude in this instance was indeed exemplary and I want you to know of my deepest appreciation.

Very truly your,
Eddie R. Schrader

GW's Home Town Gets Face Lifting

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — George Washington's home town is undergoing its biggest face lifting since the days when the first president owned acreage in the center of the city.

Government and private enterprise are teaming to give this historic northern Virginia city a new 18th century look.

On almost every street of "Old Town," the section near the Potomac River, across from Washington, D.C., old houses are being restored either by individual owners or development firms.

Supplementing this work is construction by private builders of new rows of Colonial style townhouses which blend in readily with the authentic old homes.

But the largest project was given its initial shove by the federal government's urban renewal program.

Most of two large city blocks of outmoded commercial buildings along King Street, the main shopping artery, were demolished under work financed with federal funds.

Still left standing, however, were Alexandria's old City Hall and Gadsby's Tavern, regarded by some as America's greatest 18th century inn.

These two examples of earlier Alexandria architecture are being used as the core of a new cluster of brick buildings forming a modern shopping center with Colonial decor.

Adjacent to City Hall will be a park, to be known as the Market Square. Underground will be parking space for hundreds of cars.

Alexandria's civic, political and business leaders say the city has potential as a prime tourist area.

They cite these as among the sights Alexandria has to show the visitor:

Christ Church, from which George Washington was buried; Gadsby's Tavern, where he dined and danced; the Fitzhugh-Lee House, boyhood home of Robert E. Lee.

Romney Has Yet to Take Firm Stand on Key National Issues

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George Romney of Michigan has good reason to feel a little cocky, at least right now. He has a lot going for him. At 58 he is trim, square - jawed, with an undaunted gaze.

This is the strong, executive-type look. And he was a good executive when he was head of American Motors. He switched to politics and this month was elected to his third term as governor.

A recent public opinion poll, which showed him more highly regarded than President Johnson, said voters considered him a man of higher character, with compelling moral overtones.

He has refused so far to say whether he will seek the Republican presidential candidacy in 1968 although at the moment he seems to be in front of the field of likely prospects.

Yet, he has a long way to go before he can get the nomination and an even longer one before he can ever win the White House.

For one thing, he will have to do a lot of explaining on where he stands on national issues. Outside of Michigan, most people who admire him probably are admiring Romney as a person without much knowledge of what he stands for.

The reason is that he hasn't said much, or has been very vague, on problems outside his state. One example is the war in Viet Nam. On this subject he has wiggled and wobbled and in one memorable news conference made hash of it.

Besides this, he is going to have a job reconciling Goldwater Republicans and inducing them to support him — if he wants to run for president — after his attitude toward Sen. Barry Goldwater in the 1964 campaign.

He didn't endorse the Arizonan. And recently Goldwater, while not closing the door on the governor, said Romney has a "lot of homework to do with party leaders" to atone for failing to endorse him.

It's possible, if Romney moves into the national scene, that he will show a tendency to shoot from the hip. He did a bit of that over the weekend.

He and New York's re-elected Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller arranged to meet at Dorado, Puerto Rico. Before Romney arrived Rockefeller, who has taken himself out of presidential consideration but vividly remembers the split condition of the GOP in 1964, tried to look ahead to see what it needed to get solidified for 1968.

He suggested Republican governors reach a consensus — Johnson's favorite word — on moving away from the dogmatic ideology that characterized the 1964 campaign.

Immediately after arriving, and before seeing Rockefeller, Romney attacked Rockefeller's "consensus" proposal. He said, "That's Rockefeller's word. I associate it with someone (undoubtedly Johnson) who has not fared so well with consensus. I think we need leadership."

After talking with Rockefeller, Romney endorsed Rockefeller's "consensus" in principle. He said the difference between them was more apparent than real.

Romney, like so many other governors, talks about the need for more independence by the states. At the same time he wants the federal government to hand back to the states for their needs, but without strings, income tax money.

Light Bulb Makers at Odds With Congress

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Light bulb manufacturers insist their product is the most efficient they can make. A congressional report, however, says simply, "Light bulbs burn out too fast."

The conflict has existed for a long time, but the only thing accomplished so far has been to define the battle lines. Since there is so little appreciation of the other's argument, that battle might occur some day.

The stakes are high. Annual sales of light bulbs total one billion. At an average cost of 25 cents a bulb, that total turns into a dollar figure of 250 million.

And, since the cost of electricity used by a bulb is about six or seven times its own cost, you reach an astronomical figure of $1.5 billion as the annual consumer expenditure associated with electric light bulbs.

A House subcommittee has just published a report for congressional use in "a continuing evaluation of this problem." Its title gives a tipoff: "The short life of the electric light bulb."

The report draws these conclusions:

1. Bulb life is shorter now than it was a half century ago.

2. The life of a standard bulb can be increased.

3. Most popularly used bulbs do not operate at maximum efficiency.

4. The life of bulbs could be doubled at only a small increase in cost to the consumer.

Generally speaking, the manufacturers dispute these findings.

Both government and business agree on this: It is impossible to have both maximum light and maximum life from the same bulb. A little less light means a little longer life. And more light means less life.

The problem is how to reach a balance of efficiency between light and life and then mix into the formula the cost of electricity used. It is disagreement over this formula that causes one of the big differences of opinion.

The manufacturers want to include in their formula, among other things, the fixed costs of the lighting systems and fixtures. The House report argues that the cost of the bulb and the electric power it uses are the only expenditures that should be considered.

Two other factors complicate the formula of the efficient bulb:

Bulbs are made for sale throughout the country. They do not vary in design from one region to another. But electricity rates do. In Massachusetts the cost is 2.76 cents a kilowatt hour. In Tennessee it is .45 of a cent.

Secondly, when you first turn on your lights the electricity you use costs more than it does five minutes later. Your bills are based on a formula that lowers your rate as you use more power — until a minimum rate is reached.

The manufacturers want to use the average price of this electricity. The House report contends a lower rate should be used.

Whether maximum efficiency has been reached, this is the rated life of most bulbs: 25 watts 1,100 hours, 40 to 60 watts 1,000 hours, and 75 to 100 watts 750 hours.

Why then do some lights blow out after only a few hours? Vibration in shipment is one answer. Defects in production another. Manufacturers concede that they can achieve only an average quality. Some bulbs will be bad ones.

Manufacturers generally disbelieve the frequently heard complaint that bulbs burn out sooner than their rated life. They admit that bulbs might be changed more often. But they're used more often also, they say.

PAUL FLOWERS' GREENHOUSE

Dear Greenhouse:

Recently, when a businessman (feeling good) leaned back in his office chair and sang snatches of a gay song that was popular in the 20s. (It was a happy, healthy sound), his worried secretary asked solicitously if he were feeling all right!

What happened? When did people stop singing?

For generations, singing was a custom accepted by singer and listener alike. But, the custom faded so gradually that most people are unaware that it is no longer a part of their lives.

Not only is the custom dead; but, to indulge oneself in singing seems to be declasse and downright suspicious.

People used to sing!

Womenfolk sang as they worked in the kitchen. Menfolk accompained their tasks with an obbligato of hymns and ballads. Rendered, sometime, in uncertain tones. But, who cared if they "couldn't carry a tune in a bucket"

Work went better with a song.

Children sang, or whistled, or hummed. The world was alive with their music. Girls crooned to their dolls. A boy, walking down the street, was nearly always preceded by the sound of whistling. Old men wheezed melodies of bygone days. Grandmothers sang to their grandchildren. Songs extrolling viture; or, plaintive tear-jerkers that told of orphans or star-crossed lovers; or, grisly melodies of nefarious crimes; or gay ditties that sat feet a-tapping.

When neighbor visited neighbor on the lawn or porch at night, it was not unusual for them to blend their voices in song.

Youngfolk quickly learned the lyrics of new ballads, and were not shy about singing them. (Listen to the words of the current top-10, and it's easy to understand why even teenagers heistate to sing aloud).

Did people used to have more to sing about than we do today? (One has to give the matter only superficial thought to realize the fallacy of such a theory.) True, they didn't have The Bomb -- that scapegoat for fear. But, they lived amid many things equally depressing and fearsome to them, in the context of their time.

Songs are still with us, but few give them voice. Canned music has silenced us. The pros have taken over. Only very old or very young have the temerity to sing aloud -- spontaneously; unabashed. But, oldsters are passing from us daily (to where, it is hoped, singing and joyful noises resound). And youngsters are growing up to conform to adult ways.

Recently, I walked into an auto repair shop; and, over the din of hammer and drill, I heard the sound of singing. Because of its "living quality," I knew the happy tune did not come from a television set or radio. I searched for its source and discovered it came from the underside of a car. (Only the feet of the singer could be seen).

A face brightened by a crooked smile appeared.

"Yep," the singer said. "It's the people that have to listen to me that suffer."

He ducked back under the car. I paid a bill and left the shop.

The tune followed me down the street. I noticed several passers-by picked up the refrain of the song and went their way humming or whistling softly between their teeth. (We may yet sing again!)

I've heard singing described in many ways: "Inner harmony made audible;" "the highest form of speech;" "auxiliary tears": "a smile set to music."

Whatever it is; I'd like to see it "recustomized."

Smithsonian Heads Drive For Better Museums

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution, a treasure house of relics, is embarked on a new venture which is intended to have impact on cities and small towns throughout the nation.

The program is keyed to museums and how they can pay off in the far-reaching benefits of stimulating educational growth and the immediate benefits of producing income for towns and cities.

Frank A. Taylor, director of the United States National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution, says the Smithsonian is intensifying cooperation with more than 5,000 existing museums, and also is engaged in training curators and other museum workers.

The 89th Congress passed, and President Johnson signed, legislation providing for a million-dollar, four - year start on the program. The underlying aims are to help improve present museums and to encourage communities and to encourage communities which do not have them, to star now on setting them up.

The Smithsonian, top Washington attraction for tourists and scholars, is a center of study that in recent years has changed from being known as "the nation's attic" to the nation's showplace."

More than 10 million visitors pass through the Smithsonian each year.

Tourists can be drawn to small museums, too, Taylor said.

"Tourism is a big economic boon to any community and museums have frequently helped the economy of their areas far beyond any relationship to the modest support given them," he says.

"Twice in recent weeks, I have heard it said that businesses seeking locations for new plants are quite concerned about the cultural climate," Taylor says.

As for helping education, Taylor says, "the museum, no matter how small, offers reality, which is eagerly sought by young, active-minded people.

"The textbook, radio and television are saturating the student with second-hand interpretations and someone else's impressions. He must be given the opportunity to form his own impressions of reality. These are the words of educators."

The legislation behind the new Smithsonian cooperative program permits the support of students enrolled in schools and colleges in taking cooperative courses in museums and makes possible internships for people working in museums who may equipped and well-stalled museums.

"Skilled museum curators would instruct and share their skills with young people making careers of museum work," Taylor says.

A TRIBUTE TO MY TEACHER AND THE VANDUSER SCHOOL

I am only a boy small for my age, yet, Mom says I'm eleven years old. I don't dislike school as a general rule, but lately, I sure hate to start.

In the mornings I'm called, I dress in the hall. I wash, then put on my shoes, then when I have combed my hair, I'm ready, I guess, for the fuss and then I think, "Oh heck! What's the use. This math I never can do. My teacher is swell, and he tries so well to show me how it is done. I am so slow he gets mad, I know, but speed I never can get. I don't think I'b so dumb, but it's hard to catch on and I wonder if I'll be left to study alone.

While the others go out to play, I like our school and all the rules and the teachers I think are the best.

If I don't catch up, I'll be in a rut, and this grade I don't need to fail. Time means much, and progress seems so slow. If I ever catch on, I'll feel like a king on his throne. All I can say is, have patience with me.

And, Mr. Richard, I'll sure do my best. Then when I grow up, a surgeon I'll be. Then I'll do a favor for you.

When I have gone to college somewhere, I'll think of this little brick school.

Combat Badge For Armstrong

TAY NINH, VIETNAM - The combat infantryman's badge was awarded in Tay Ninh, Vietnam, Nov. 1, to Army Sergeant Lester Armstrong, 24, son of Rufus Armstrong, Charleston, Mo.

He is assigned as a squad leader in Company C, 3rd Battalion of the 196th light infantry brigade's 21st infantry.

Combat infantryman's badges were first awarded during World War II. A star was added for those who served in front line combat in Korea, too. Should a veteran of both World War II and Korea again be awarded the badge, it would be topped by two stars.

In Vietnam, at least 30 days of contact with hostile forces is required in order for eligibility.

Sergeant Armstrong entered the Army in January of 1960 and was stationed at Ft. Devens, Mass., before arriving in Vietnam in August of this year on his present tour of duty.

He is a 1959 graduate of Lincoln high school in Charleston, Mo.

His wife, Hazel, lives on route 2, Box G-4, Malden, Mo.

WHERE THE ACTION IS. . .

I have no specific reference in mind, but some worship services are like sitting in a train station while the names of all the destinations are called out, and the congregation seems to think listening to the calls is the same thing as getting up and getting on on the train, but actually, everybody just continues to remain in the waiting room. I think you will find out TRINITY BAPTIST is not like that. There is action and everybody is engaged in it. There is the action of building a new church. There is the action of entering a new mission. There is the action of seeking to discover what God is doing and trying to become a part of His involvement in the world. You might enjoy worshipping with us on Sunday at 10:35 a.m. or 7:00 p.m. We are meeting temporarily at 110 E. Center Street. The welcome is as broad as the welcome of the loving kindness of God.

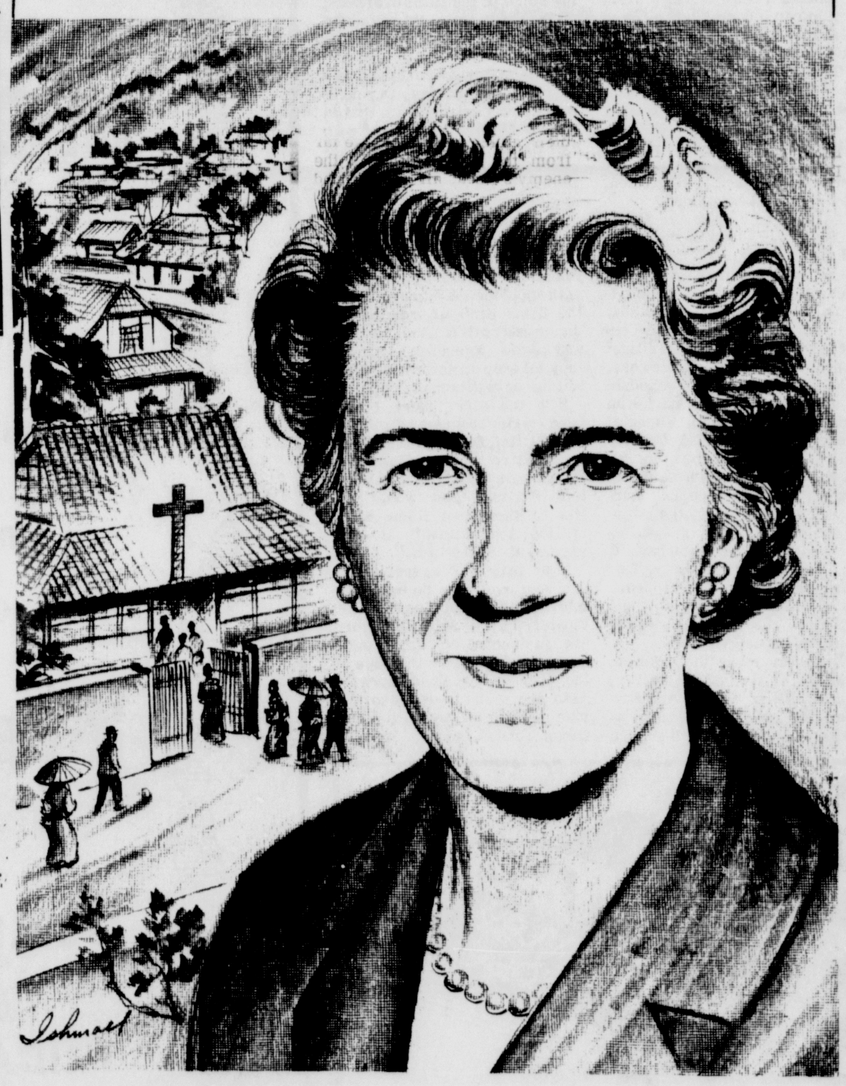
The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL



When Peggy Cuddleback Woodard was a girl, she read "Windows in Henry Street" and "Forty Years in Hull House," by Jane Addams. That inspired her to work in the slums of New York, but she took a different turn and before her 21st birthday she was teaching in Japan as a Baptist missionary. Although a graduate in journalism from the University of Oregon, she got her training at the Chicago Baptist Missionary School.

The war interrupted her work in a Japanese village, and she went to China. In Shanghai when the Japanese took over, she became a prisoner. During seven months of horror in a prison camp she saw the brotherhood of man at work. Behind bars all were equal and worked together to help each other; the wealthy, the poor, the society matron, the dope addict. When she returned to Japan after the war she wondered if she would have to start all over again. Such was not the case, for when she reached her village she found a memorial to her faith and the faith of the villagers. Her house had been kept intact as a symbol of hope to the people. It is now the church in that village.

God Renews His Promise

Romney Has Yet to Take Firm Stand on Key National Issues

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. George Romney of Michigan has good reason to feel a little cocky, at least right now. He has a lot going for him. At 58 he is trim, square - jawed, with an undaunted gaze.

This is the strong, executive-type look. And he was a good executive when he was head of American Motors. He switched to politics and this month was elected to his third term as governor.

A recent public opinion poll, which showed him more highly regarded than President Johnson, said voters considered him a man of higher character, with compelling moral overtones.

He has refused so far to say whether he will seek the Republican presidential candidacy in 1968 although at the moment he seems to be in front of the field of likely prospects.

Yet, he has a long way to go before he can get the nomination and an even longer one before he can ever win the White House.

For one thing, he will have to do a lot of explaining on where he stands on national issues. Outside of Michigan, most people who admire him probably are admiring Romney as a person without much knowledge of what he stands for.

The reason is that he hasn't said much, or has been very vague, on problems outside his state. One example is the war in Viet Nam. On this subject he has wiggled and wobbled and in one memorable news conference made hash of it.

Besides this, he is going to have a job reconciling Goldwater Republicans and inducing them to support him — if he wants to run for president — after his attitude toward Sen. Barry Goldwater in the 1964 campaign.

He didn't endorse the Arizonan. And recently Goldwater, while not closing the door on the governor, said Romney has a "lot of homework to do with party leaders" to atone for failing to endorse him.

It's possible, if Romney moves into the national scene, that he will show a tendency to shoot from the hip. He did a bit of that over the weekend.

He and New York's re-elected Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller arranged to meet at Dorado, Puerto Rico. Before Romney arrived Rockefeller, who has taken himself out of presidential consideration but vividly remembers the split condition of the GOP in 1964, tried to look ahead to see what it needed to get solidified for 1968.

He suggested Republican governors reach a consensus — Johnson's favorite word — on moving away from the dogmatic ideology that characterized the 1964 campaign.

Immediately after arriving, and before seeing Rockefeller, Romney attacked Rockefeller's "consensus" proposal. He said, "That's Rockefeller's word. I associate it with someone (undoubtedly Johnson) who has not fared so well with consensus. I think we need leadership."

After talking with Rockefeller, Romney endorsed Rockefeller's "consensus" in principle. He said the difference between them was more apparent than real.

Romney, like so many other governors, talks about the need for more independence by the states. At the same time he wants the federal government to hand back to the states for their needs, but without strings, income tax money.

Combat Badge For Armstrong

TAY NINH, VIETNAM - The combat infantryman's badge was awarded in Tay Ninh, Vietnam, Nov. 1, to Army Sergeant Lester Armstrong, 24, son of Rufus Armstrong, Charleston, Mo.

He is assigned as a squad leader in Company C, 3rd Battalion of the 196th light infantry brigade's 21st infantry.

Combat infantryman's badges were first awarded during World War II. A star was added for those who served in front line combat in Korea, too. Should a veteran of both World War II and Korea again be awarded the badge, it would be topped by two stars.

In Vietnam, at least 30 days of contact with hostile forces is required in order for eligibility.

Sergeant Armstrong entered the Army in January of 1960 and was stationed at Ft. Devens, Mass., before arriving in Vietnam in August of this year on his present tour of duty.

He is a 1959 graduate of Lincoln high school in Charleston, Mo.

His wife, Hazel, lives on route 2, Box G-4, Malden, Mo.

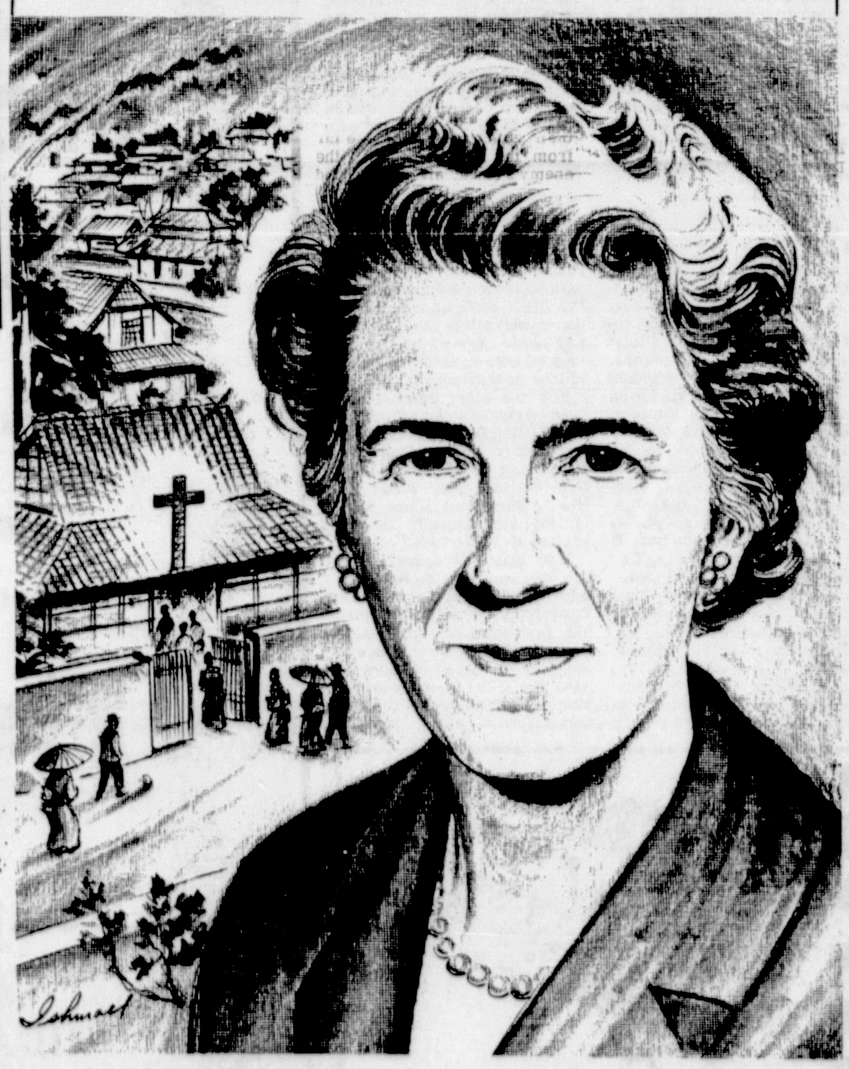
The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL



When Peggy Cuddleback Woodard was a girl, she read "Windows in Henry Street" and "Forty Years in Hull House," by Jane Addams. That inspired her to work in the slums of New York, but she took a different turn and before her 21st birthday she was teaching in Japan as a Baptist missionary. Although a graduate in journalism from the University of Oregon, she got her training at the Chicago Baptist Missionary School.

The war interrupted her work in a Japanese village, and she went to China. In Shanghai when the Japanese took over, she became a prisoner. During seven months of horror in a prison camp she saw the brotherhood of man at work. Behind bars all were equal and worked together to help each other; the wealthy, the poor, the society matron, the dope addict. When she returned to Japan after the war she wondered if she would have to start all over again. Such was not the case, for when she reached her village she found a memorial to her faith and the faith of the villagers. Her house had been kept intact as a symbol of hope to the people. It is now the church in that village.

WHERE THE ACTION IS. . .

I have no specific reference in mind, but some worship services are like sitting in a train station while the names of all the destinations are called out, and the congregation seems to think listening to the calls is the same thing as getting up and getting on the train, but actually, everybody just continues to remain in the waiting room. I think you will find out TRINITY BAPTIST is not like that. There is action and everybody is engaged in it. There is the action of building a new church. There is the action of entering a new mission. There is the action of seeking to discover what God is doing and trying to become a part of His involvement in the world. You might enjoy worshipping with us on Sunday at 10:35 a.m. or 7:00 p.m. We are meeting temporarily at 110 E. Center Street. The welcome is as broad as the welcome of the loving kindness of God.

Sincerely,

Robert E. Lively, Jr., Pastor

Armed Forces

Airman

James E. Ashley

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. - Airman James E. Ashley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Ashley of 312 S. Virginia, Charleston, has been selected for technical training at Sheppard AFB, Tex., as a U.S. Air Force missile facilities specialist.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. His new school is part of the Air Training Command which conducts hundreds of specialized courses to provide technically trained personnel for the nation's aerospace force.

Airman Ashley, a graduate of Charleston high school, attended Nashville, Tenn. Diesel College.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AHTNC) --Larry J. Armstrong, 21, son of Mrs. Sadie L. Darnall, Route 3, Box 46-C, Portageville, Mo., was promoted to Army specialist fourth class Nov. 15 at Ft. Bragg, N.C., where he is serving with the 82nd Airborne Division.

Spec. Armstrong, a rifleman in Company A, 3rd Battalion of the division's 325th Infantry, entered the Army in October 1965 and was last stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga.

His father, Clemon Armstrong, lives at 320 W. Elgin St., Chandler, Ariz.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. - Roy C White 21, son of Mrs. Annbe B. White, 815 Dorothy Lane, Poplar Bluff, was promoted Nov. 16 to Army sergeant at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Sgt. White, assigned as a section chief in Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 325th Infantry, 82d Airborne Division, entered the Army in July, 1962. He has served a tour of duty with the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam.

The sergeant is the son of Eltee White, 804 W. Bain, St., Dexter.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa -- Airman Third Class Robert L. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Wilson of Rt. 3, Portageville, provided essential support to help his organization win the coveted Smith Trophy as the best air defense ground unit in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Wilson is a member of the Air Defense Command's (ADC) 30th Air Division, which received the trophy during ceremonies at Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 19. The airman is assigned at Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo., as an aircraft mechanic.

His division, headquartered at Sioux City Air Base and composed of 23 widely-scattered units, maintains air surveillance over the U.S. central plains with the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE) radar system.

Airman Wilson and other division personnel won the trophy for the best defensive combat capability during the year by scoring 6,930 of a possible 7,000 points. One phase of the stiff competition included a computer-simulated enemy air attack. It tested the division's operational readiness to detect, identify and, if unfriendly, intercept and destroy approaching aircraft.

The rotating trophy was originally sponsored in 1963 by the Night Fighter Association to promote, through competition, the efficiency of isolated air defense ground units. The award is named for retired General Frederic H. Smith, Jr., once deputy commander of ADC and later Air Force Vice Chief of Staff. The 30th, then known as the Sioux City Air Defense Sector, won the first award of the trophy.

Airman Wilson is a graduate of Portageville high school.

LONG BINH, Vietnam - Billy J. Hill, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hill, 812 Mary, Sikeston, was promoted to specialist fifth class Nov. 14 in Long Binh, Vietnam, where he is serving with the 556th Transportation Company.

For pay purposes, his new grade is equivalent to sergeant.

Spec. Hill, a wheeled-vehicle mechanic, entered the Army in January, 1965 and was last assigned at Ft. Lewis, ASH.

He attended Matthews high school.

FT. HOOD, Tex. - Roy H. Wilhite, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zack Wilhite, Rt. 3, Portageville, was promoted to Army specialist fourth class Nov. 7 at Ft. Hood, Tex., where he is a member of the 73rd Artillery.

For pay purposes, his new grade is equivalent to corporal.

Spec. Wilhite is fire direction center specialist of the artillery's 1st Battalion. He entered the Army in January 1966.

He graduated in 1965 from Wardell high school.

FT. EUSTIS, Va. - Private Jerry M. Davis, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis, 303 Wilburn Road, East Prairie, completed an aircraft engine repair course at the Army Transportation School, Ft. Eustis, Va., Nov. 17.

During the eight-week course, he was trained to repair airplane and helicopter engines and other assemblies of Army aircraft.

His wife, Deborah, lives on Rt. 13, Box 276, Memphis, Tenn.

USS SARATOGA -- Airman Larry J. Littleton, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Littleton of 603 Taylor, Sikeston, has reported for duty as a crewmember aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Saratoga at her homeport in Mayport, Fla.

The Saratoga is a member of the hard-hitting, fast-moving carrier striking force as one of the Navy's chief weapons for maintaining control of the sea.

Carriers form the heart of the Navy's striking force, and their attack aircraft range far from the ship, fighting the enemy's sea, air and ground forces.

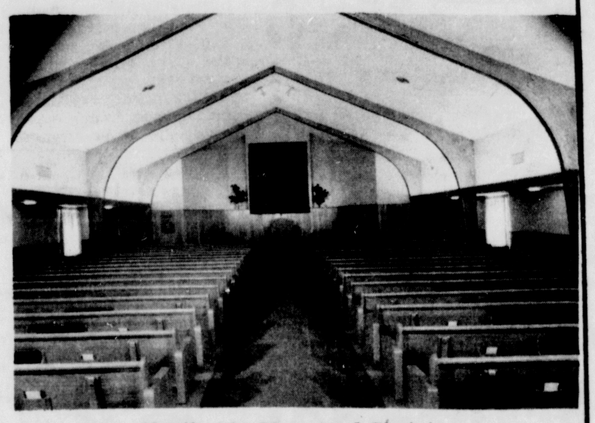
#57 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area

THIS WEEK SALUTING

NORTHSIDE CHURCH Of CHRIST

Jimmy Miller, Pastor



Northside Church of Christ

When was the church of Christ founded? Where did it have its beginning? What is the guidebook of belief? These are some of the questions being asked about each religious group.

The Church was established in Jerusalem on the Day of Pentecost, A. D. 30. Chapter two of the book of Acts gives us an account of the events of that day. This was the Church for which Jesus died. He purchased it with His blood. So we then realize that the Church Jesus established had its beginning over nineteen-hundred years ago in the city of Jerusalem.

Members of the churces of Christ desire to be a part of the Church Jesus died for. Since we are living nineteen-hundred years since it had its beginning, how is this possible? By following the same set of guide-lines which directed the Church of the first century this is possible. The Church then was directed by the words of God inspired men. We today accept only the Bible, the inspired Word of God as our guide.

Taking the Scriptures as our only guide, we endeavor to make the Church of the twentieth century like the Church established in A. D. 30., both in belief and practice.

Members of the churches of Christ always welcome visitors to their services. The minister of the Northside church of Christ, Jimmy Miller, and all of its members extend a most cordial invitation to all to visit their services.

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. His new school is part of the Air Training Command which conducts hundreds of specialized courses to provide technically trained personnel for the nation's aerospace force.

Airman Ashley, a graduate of Charleston high school, attended Nashville, Tenn. Diesel College.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AHTNC) --Larry J. Armstrong, 21, son of Mrs. Sadie L. Darnall, Route 3, Box 46-C, Portageville, Mo., was promoted to Army specialist fourth class Nov. 15 at Ft. Bragg, N.C., where he is serving with the 82nd Airborne Division.

For pay purposes, his new grade is equivalent to corporal.

Spec. Armstrong, a rifleman in Company A, 3rd Battalion of the division's 325th Infantry, entered the Army in October 1965 and was last stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga.

His father, Clemon Armstrong, lives at 320 W. Elgin St., Chandler, Ariz.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. - Roy C White 21, son of Mrs. Annbe B. White, 815 Dorothy Lane, Poplar Bluff, was promoted Nov. 16 to Army sergeant at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Sgt. White, assigned as a section chief in Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 325th Infantry, 82d Airborne Division, entered the Army in July, 1962. He has served a tour of duty with the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam.

The sergeant is the son of Eltee White, 804 W. Bain, St., Dexter.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa -- Airman Third Class Robert L. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Wilson of Rt. 3, Portageville, provided essential support to help his organization win the coveted Smith Trophy as the best air defense ground unit in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Wilson is a member of the Air Defense Command's (ADC) 30th Air Division, which received the trophy during ceremonies at Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 19. The airman is assigned at Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo., as an aircraft mechanic.

His division, headquartered at Sioux City Air Base and composed of 23 widely-scattered units, maintains air surveillance over the U.S. central plains with the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment (SAGE) radar system.

Airman Wilson and other division personnel won the trophy for the best defensive combat capability during the year by scoring 6,930 of a possible 7,000 points. One phase of the stiff competition included a computer-simulated enemy air attack. It tested the division's operational readiness to detect, identify and, if unfriendly, intercept and destroy approaching aircraft.

The rotating trophy was originally sponsored in 1963 by the Night Fighter Association to promote, through competition, the efficiency of isolated air defense ground units. The award is named for retired General Frederic H. Smith, Jr., once deputy commander of ADC and later Air Force Vice Chief of Staff. The 30th, then known as the Sioux City Air Defense Sector, won the first award of the trophy.

Airman Wilson is a graduate of Portageville high school.

LONG BINH, Vietnam - Billy J. Hill, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hill, 812 Mary, Sikeston, was promoted to specialist fifth class Nov. 14 in Long Binh, Vietnam, where he is serving with the 556th Transportation Company.

For pay purposes, his new grade is equivalent to sergeant.

Spec. Hill, a wheeled-vehicle mechanic, entered the Army in January, 1965 and was last assigned at Ft. Lewis, ASH.

He attended Matthews high school.

FT. HOOD, Tex. - Roy H. Wilhite, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Zack Wilhite, Rt. 3, Portageville, was promoted to Army specialist fourth class Nov. 7 at Ft. Hood, Tex., where he is a member of the 73rd Artillery.

For pay purposes, his new grade is equivalent to corporal.

Spec. Wilhite is fire direction center specialist of the artillery's 1st Battalion. He entered the Army in January 1966.

He graduated in 1965 from Wardell high school.

FT. EUSTIS, Va. - Private Jerry M. Davis, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis, 303 Wilburn Road, East Prairie, completed an aircraft engine repair course at the Army Transportation School, Ft. Eustis, Va., Nov. 17.

During the eight-week course, he was trained to repair airplane and helicopter engines and other assemblies of Army aircraft.

His wife, Deborah, lives on Rt. 13, Box 276, Memphis, Tenn.

USS SARATOGA -- Airman Larry J. Littleton, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Littleton of 603 Taylor, Sikeston, has reported for duty as a crewmember aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Saratoga at her homeport in Mayport, Fla.

The Saratoga is a member of the hard-hitting, fast-moving carrier striking force as one of the Navy's chief weapons for maintaining control of the sea.

Carriers form the heart of the Navy's striking force, and their attack aircraft range far from the ship, fighting the enemy's sea, air and ground forces.

#57 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area

THIS WEEK SALUTING

NORTHSIDE CHURCH Of CHRIST

Jimmy Miller, Pastor

Northside Church of Christ

When was the church of Christ founded? Where did it have its beginning? What is the guidebook of belief? These are some of the questions being asked about each religious group.

The Church was established in Jerusalem on the Day of Pentecost, A. D. 30. Chapter two of the book of Acts gives us an account of the events of that day. This was the Church for which Jesus died. He purchased it with His blood. So we then realize that the Church Jesus established had its beginning over nineteen-hundred years ago in the city of Jerusalem.

Members of the churces of Christ desire to be a part of the Church Jesus died for. Since we are living nineteen-hundred years since it had its beginning, how is this possible? By following the same set of guide-lines which directed the Church of the first century this is possible. The Church then was directed by the words of God inspired men. We today accept only the Bible, the inspired Word of God as our guide.

Taking the Scriptures as our only guide, we endeavor to make the Church of the twentieth century like the Church established in A. D. 30., both in belief and practice.

Members of the churches of Christ always welcome visitors to their services. The minister of the Northside church of Christ, Jimmy Miller, and all of its members extend a most cordial invitation to all to visit their services.

Bar Fund to Protect Public

JEFFERSON CITY -- Missouri has joined the growing number of states in which the legal profession has taken steps to protect the public against loss suffered because of a dishonest act on the part of one of its members. John H. Lashly, St. Louis, President of The Missouri Bar, today announced that the organization has established a clients' security fund from which clients can be reimbursed for losses suffered due to misappropriation of their funds by a member of the legal profession in Missouri.

To establish the fund, an initial appropriation of $10,000 has been set aside by the board of governors of the state bar.

"The money to establish this fund comes from dues paid by every lawyer licensed to practice law in Missouri," Lashly said. "It is another in a continuing series of efforts to assure the public of the highest standard of conduct by members of the legal profession," he continued. "We are the only profession, I am sure, that requires its members to pay dues to help enforce its high standard of professionalism and, in addition, in some way recompense trusting clients for losses brought about in those rare instances where some member of the profession fails to live up to these standards."

The decision to establish the Fund, Mr. Lashly said, was based on three main points: (a) the legal profession accepts the responsibility of maintaining high standards for its rare instances where these standards are not maintained, the profession should reimburse clients for any loss suffered; (b) the incidence of such losses is so limited that their reimbursement will not impose an unduely heavy burden upon the organized Bar; (c) similar funds are now being successfully administered in more than 20 other states.

The fund will be administered by a committee which has the discretion to cover losses sustained by a client due to fradulent or dishonest acts by any lawyer who, at the time of the act, is a member in good standing of The Missouri Bar engaged in the private practice of law in Missouri.

Only claims arising out of acts occurring after January 1, 1966 will be considered.

Claims for losses will have to be filed with a Board of Trustees which will administer the Fund and make final determinations concerning claims. Loyd E. Roberts, Joplin, a past president of The Missouri Bar, was named chairman of the board. Oliver Rasch, Bonne Terre, was named vice-chairman. Wade F. Baker, Jefferson City, executive director of The Missouri Bar will serve as secretary. Other members are T. Hartley Pollock, St. Louis, Clem Fairchild, Kansas City and J. Frederic Allebach, Albany.

Scenic Region Given to State

JEFFERSON CITY AP - Title to the 135-acre scenic Elephant Rocks in Iron County near Graniteville has been received by the state Conservation Commission as a gift.

It was received by mail Wednesday from the owners, Dr. and Mrs. John S. Brown of Towson, Md., the commission said Brown is a retired geologist, formerly employed by the St. Joseph Lead Co.

Brown bought the site last year from the Hayward Granite Company so he could make a Thanksgiving gift of the rocky wonders to the state.

The commission said it intends to maintain the site as a scenic attraction.

Kansas City Mayor Sticks to Criticism Of State Programs

KANSAS CITY AP - "It is useless to try to smother the inadequacies of this state by long recitations of budget figures from past state budgets," Mayor Ilus Davis of Kansas City said in a letter Wednesday to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Gov. Hearnes had replied in a speech Tuesday in Kansas City to the Mayor's earlier charges that state programs were meager in education, public health and roads. The governor cited state expenditures in those fields.

In his letter Wednesday, Davis told Hearnes that "as elected officials, we have an obligation to look at the problems we face and try to find a solution."

The letter said that Missouri is missing millions of dollars in federal funds for public health and is not caring for its indigent ill because of no statewide program to meet those needs and qualify for federal money.

Davis also said Missouri ranks 42nd of 50 states in per-capita dollar support for education. He proposed using a $70 million state surplus expected this year for a bond issue that could provide long-range financing for educational structures on a state-wide basis without any immediate tax raise.

The mayor's letter said that Missouri's grossly insufficient road system is discouraging business and tourists from coming to the state, besides holding back development of the Ozarks area and requiring the trucking industry to drive thousands of miles out of its way each day.

"The best thing we can do for Kansas City and for the state of Missouri is to examine our present position with regard to hospitals, schools and roads, admit our inadequacies and failures and see what needs to be done to bring this state up to a competitive level of service, Davis called up-to-date state laws with regard to school financing and said "the school boards of the state should be given authority to raise the money that is needed to operate the schools."

"The archaic rules on passage of general obligation bonds of this state, which require a two-thirds majority, have done nothing but impair the growth of this state.

"The two-thirds rule delivers into the hands of a minority the ability to stop needed public improvements. The officials of adjacent states with which we are competing daily watch with wry amusement when a Missouri minority of one-third plus one can block the buiding of schools, hospitals, roads, city halls, parks and other basic and necessary public improvements.

"We have countenanced minority government in the field of public improvements too long.

"A casual look at the map. . . would disclose the need for a road from Springfield to Memphis and one through the center of the state from the Iowa line to Columbia, to Jefferson City to Rolla and one down to the southern part of the state.

"It is obvious that there should be a dual-lane road from St. Louis up to Keokuk on the Missouri side of the river and that the construction of the interstate network, already commenced, should be accelerated."

Doctor Wounded Farmer Jailed

AURORA, AP - A surgeon from Aurora was shot and wounded Thanksgiving morning and the sheriff arrested the farmer on whose land the physician and his party were hunting.

The surgeon, Dr. A. J. C. McCallum, was wounded in the stomach with a .22 caliber bullet. He was brought to the Aurora Community Hospital, then transferred to St. John's Hospital in Springfield for surgery.

Dewey Garoutte, 68, of near Aurora was charged with felonious assault and taken to the Lawrence County jail at Mount Vernon.

Sheriff Marvin Quade said McCallum's hunting party was 81 yards from the Garoutte home and that reportedly Garoutte ordered them off. When the physician asked permission to pick up two dead birds, the sheriff said, Garoutte's rifle fired.

The hunting party included McCallum's daughter and two other men.

She Wasn't Captured

Queen Wilhelmina was not captured during the German invasion of The Netherlands in World War II. She escaped with her government, and set up a government-in-exile in England.

WAR MOTHER

These are the toes I loved to kiss;
These hands once clung to mine;
This is the body they sent back home,
A body once strong and fine.
This is the child I bore in pain,
The son God gave to me
To love and cherish and dream about
Ever so tenderly.
These are the lips that called me 'Mom';
This hair I watched him comb;
Here lies my dream all still and dead,
The body they sent back home.
Yes, mothers down through all the ages
Have dreaded war's ways with feras
That materialize in wasted sons
And wasted, bitter tears.

Bar Fund to Protect Public

JEFFERSON CITY -- Missouri has joined the growing number of states in which the legal profession has taken steps to protect the public against loss suffered because of a dishonest act on the part of one of its members. John H. Lashly, St. Louis, President of The Missouri Bar, today announced that the organization has established a clients' security fund from which clients can be reimbursed for losses suffered due to misappropriation of their funds by a member of the legal profession in Missouri.

To establish the fund, an initial appropriation of $10,000 has been set aside by the board of governors of the state bar.

"The money to establish this fund comes from dues paid by every lawyer licensed to practice law in Missouri," Lashly said. "It is another in a continuing series of efforts to assure the public of the highest standard of conduct by members of the legal profession," he continued. "We are the only profession, I am sure, that requires its members to pay dues to help enforce its high standard of professionalism and, in addition, in some way recompense trusting clients for losses brought about in those rare instances where some member of the profession fails to live up to these standards."

The decision to establish the Fund, Mr. Lashly said, was based on three main points: (a) the legal profession accepts the responsibility of maintaining high standards for its rare instances where these standards are not maintained, the profession should reimburse clients for any loss suffered; (b) the incidence of such losses is so limited that their reimbursement will not impose an unduely heavy burden upon the organized Bar; (c) similar funds are now being successfully administered in more than 20 other states.

The fund will be administered by a committee which has the discretion to cover losses sustained by a client due to fradulent or dishonest acts by any lawyer who, at the time of the act, is a member in good standing of The Missouri Bar engaged in the private practice of law in Missouri.

Only claims arising out of acts occurring after January 1, 1966 will be considered.

Claims for losses will have to be filed with a Board of Trustees which will administer the Fund and make final determinations concerning claims. Loyd E. Roberts, Joplin, a past president of The Missouri Bar, was named chairman of the board. Oliver Rasch, Bonne Terre, was named vice-chairman. Wade F. Baker, Jefferson City, executive director of The Missouri Bar will serve as secretary. Other members are T. Hartley Pollock, St. Louis, Clem Fairchild, Kansas City and J. Frederic Allebach, Albany.

Scenic Region Given to State

JEFFERSON CITY AP - Title to the 135-acre scenic Elephant Rocks in Iron County near Graniteville has been received by the state Conservation Commission as a gift.

It was received by mail Wednesday from the owners, Dr. and Mrs. John S. Brown of Towson, Md., the commission said Brown is a retired geologist, formerly employed by the St. Joseph Lead Co.

Brown bought the site last year from the Hayward Granite Company so he could make a Thanksgiving gift of the rocky wonders to the state.

The commission said it intends to maintain the site as a scenic attraction.

Kansas City Mayor Sticks to Criticism Of State Programs

KANSAS CITY AP - "It is useless to try to smother the inadequacies of this state by long recitations of budget figures from past state budgets," Mayor Ilus Davis of Kansas City said in a letter Wednesday to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

ALL RIGHT

So money is tight and interest rates are up. The houses don't change! 531 East Gladys hasn't changed. A clean 3 bedroom, large living room, built in corridor kitchen, breakfast room, part basement, large garage all in an excellent location and a low interest rate loan can be assumed. Payments of $72 per month includes taxes and insurance. Possession immediately.

DING! DONG!

You'll hear the Middle School bell just a safe one block walk from this 5 room, bath and garage at 517 Sikes. Nice carpets and drapes. Central gas heat, storm windows and doors. Pay owners equity and assume $7500 loan with payments of $72.50 including taxes and insurance. Low interest rate loan.

S-H-H-H-H-H

Wake me gently. I am a very sound sleeper. Just coming on the market. This sort of thing is all NEW to me. I am only six. Imagine! I overlook the prettiest subdivision in Sikeston. I am 101 feet long. Red Roman Brick. Split level. Wide, wide overhang. Five bedrooms all but one paneled. Cathedral ceilings. From my entry foyer you can see the massive fireplace in the carpeted living room, carpeted dining room, breakfast room with sliding glass doors to patio. My kitchen has everything, waste disposer, dishwasher, appliance center, built-in range, cooking odor vent fan, scrumptious cabinets and excellent working area. I am loaded with closet and storage space. My windows are double glazed. Andersen. My familyroom is large and roomy and I have a large TV room immediately off of family room. Large roomy basement. Three baths, two heating and cooling plants. (The utilities are reasonable.) I have over 220' of frontage. Two Cadillac garage with storage closets. My owners are being whisked off to the East. Now listen carefully, I am accustomed to being loved truly and faithfully and I don't mean merely occasionally. Don't you DARE come near me unless your intentions are completely and unequivocally honorable. The only thing I am ashamed of is my price. It is.....$47,500.....IMAGINE!!

LOOK YOU TWO

Charming North End brick veneer home with attractive carpeted large living room, large diningroom, two extra large bedrooms, kitchen with an abundance of cabinets, breakfast room, 1-1/2 baths, basement with half finished as family room with fireplace. Carport. On largest attractive corner lot at 713 Moore Ave. Owner transferred and reasonably priced at $20,000.

A VALUE BOY

$8500 total price. Six rooms and bath. Shade trees and storage building. Completely remodeled home. $300 down and $65 per month includes everything. New cabinets and new furnace. Can give immediate possession. 404 West Murray Lane.

BEAT THE TIGHT CREDIT SQUEEZE

Home owner being transferred. Lovely three bedroom split level home with beautiful carpeting and drapes in living room and dining room. Kitchen with everything, dishwasher, built-in range, vent fan and hood, disposal, eating counter and a very pretty terraced breakfast room. Paneled family room with sliding glass doors to patio. Two full ceramic baths with extra ceramic shower in one. Utility room with appliance hookups. Garage. Pay owners equity and assume present loan. Central heat and air conditioning. Pay owners equity and assume present loan at low interest rate. Prices less than $25,000. 921 Hawthorne.

Dear Santa

Dear Santa

I would like to have a Deluxe Typewriter and a U.N.C.L.E. Transmitter and a The man from U.N.C.L.E. special equipment and please please bring me a football uniform.

P. S. and I want it blue and red. P. S. and a Walkie Talkie and a black 36 key piano.

Love

Brad Shain, Jr.

P. S. We will be at Kennett, M. O. P.S.

Dear Santa

I want a Suzy Home-maker if you don't want to bring me a washes. That's okey, but bring me a vacuum cleaner of Suzy home-maker. American Beauty dishes, and also pops and pans.

Please for all of this. I just want the mixer.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to "Nervous First Baseman", the kid whose mother went to all the Little League games and yelled obscenities at the manager.

When I was in high school I played right guard on the football team. I used to die a thousand deaths when my dad would come to see me play which was often. He was always juiced to the eyeballs and his language was terrible. He ran along the sidelines yelling advice and cussing out the players. Everyone laughed. I wanted to drop in a hole and stay there.

My coach was a wonderful person. When I wanted to quit he wouldn't let me. He explained that everybody in the world has something to put up with, and my problem was my dad.

I hope the Little Leaguer will just keep doing his best, and that he won't let his mother rob him of the fun of playing ball. If his coach is as wise as mine he will help him as my coach helped me. --MINNEAPOLIS

Dear Minn: Your coach taught you a valuable lesson that extends far beyond a ball game. I hope you let him know that you appreciated his counsel and his moral support. We often wait too long to say, "Thank you."

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my wonderful husband 12 years ago. For five years I dedicated myself to his memory. Although I had many invitations to go with eligible men I refused because I didn't want to offend my deceased husband's family.

Now the problem: Iam married to another wonderful man. My first husband's mother and sister include us in all their social plans and, of course, Jack and I must reciprocate. Without realizing it, they make frequent references to incidents involving me and my first husband. I know it is upsetting to Jack and I can understand his feelings.

I can't ask these people to please stop talking about the past. I'd rather die than hurt them. This situation is clearly damaging my marriage. What can I do? --NEED A SOLUTION

Dear Need: Cultivate other friends and cut back on the family get-togethers. Why don't you visit the women during the afternoon? It would let them know you still want to be friendly, and at the same time protect your husband's feelings.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a quirk about "bargains." He thinks he is being economical, but often his tight streaks end up costing us money. He will buy almost anything if he has a coupon that will save him 7¢ on the purchase price.

We bought hospitalization insurance for the whole family a few months ago and he thinks that every time any of us has a cold or a backache we should go to the hospital. He says it is cheaper than calling a doctor who charges $20 for a house call and then prescribes $15 worth of medicine.

If you can suggest a cure for this overly frugal husband of mine I would appreciate it. --DARLING CLEMENTINE

Dear Darling: The coupon types are incurable, so give up. But the hospital routine is nonsense. No one should go to a hospital unless his doctor sends him. (For heaven's sake, don't buy any burial insurance!"

If you have trouble getting along with your parents...if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Prayer

From The Upper Room

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1966

Thy steadfast love, O Lord, extends to the heavens, thy faithfulness to the clouds. (Psalm 36:5, RSV)

PRAYER: Confronted by the fact that we cannot overcome our sins in our own strength, we turn to Thee, O God, seeking Thy mercy and forgiveness. We thank Thee that Thy mercy "is from everlasting to everlasting." In the name of Christ the Redeemer, we plead. Amen.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 Years Ago
Nov. 25, 1916

The hunting club composed of Will Sikes, Ranney Applegate, Grover Baker, E.C. Matthews, Wallace Applegate, E. A. Matthews, James Baker, Leonard McMullin, Steve Humphrey, Ralph Anderson, James Kevil, Lon Able, Moore Greer, Fred Schorle, Frank McAllister of Kennett and William Bergman of Cape Girardeau, and Jim, the duck picker, left Saturday night for their annual hunt.

The city council met in an adjourned meeting Monday night. Through some irregularities in conductiong the polls in the Fourth Ward Tuesday, November 14th, the election was declared invalid, and another special election had to be called for the purpose of voting on the $10,000 bond issue for street improvements and $5,000 bond issue for sewer improvements.

Oran - James Maddox departed Saturday for Minnesota to take charge of a railway depot in that state.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hunt, three miles south of town, a girl on December 11.

40 Years Ago
Nov. 25, 1926

Matthews - Miss Katherine Sackman has been ill the past week and unable to resume her work in the high school. Miss Rachel Shalsky has been substituting for Miss Sackman.

East Prairie - A large crowd attended the dedication of the new high school at this place Sunday. A very interesting program was furnished by local musicians and the glee clubs of the school. The address of the occasion was delivered by President Jos. A. Serena of the State Teachers College of Cape Girardeau.

Bud Martin received a severe cut about his eye Saturday night on the other side of Morehouse, when the car in which he was riding collided with another.

Joe Haw, captain of the Southeast Missouri Teachers College eleven, was named for a tackle position on the All-Star football team picked by sport writers for the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

30 Years Ago
Nov. 25, 1936

Tom Lasswell, Merlin Taylor, and Joe McCord of Sikeston have been appointed members of the Blue Jay, the annual publication of Westminster College at Fulton, it was announced Wednesday.

Mrs. M.A. Arterburn died at her home on Delmar Street Wednesday morning. She had suffered for a year with a throat ailment.

Mrs. C.J. Schwieter, mother of Raymond Schwieter of Sikeston, died at her home in Quincy, Ill., Tuesday after a lingering illness.

Either James H. Lewis or David H. Cline will be very tired at about noon Friday. The approach of the Charleston - Sikeston Thanksgiving Day game always intensifies feeling among fans, and this year it has produced a novel bet between two men. Mr. Cline believes the Bulldogs will win; Mr. Lewis backs the Blue Jays. So they made a bet, which they signed and sealed, and the loser must push the winner to Morehouse in a wheelbarrow Friday morning. The journey will be started from the Bijou at 10 o'clock.

20 Years Ago
Nov. 25, 1946

Milton Daniels, 43 year old farmer, was in a critical condition at the Sikeston General Hospital Thursday as the result of having his right arm torn off when it was caught in a combine at the Wayne Bess farm on Route 2, five miles north of Miner Switch and about eight miles north of Sikeston.

Mrs. Joy Allen and Mrs. Mary Keaton have announced that they will open a new store, Jack and Jill Shop on November 30 at 112 South Kingshighway, the former location of the P.J. Auto Store.

David M. Rowe, Bob Foley, Billy Woehlecke, Charles French, Dick Tongate and Bob McCord, who are attending Westminster College at Fulton, will arrive home next week to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with their respective parents.

Malone Theatre, today, "Young Widow" with Jane Russell and Louis Hayward. Rex Theatre, "Salty O'Rouke" with Alan Ladd and Gail Russell.

Dear Santa

Dear Santa

I would like to have a Deluxe Typewriter and a U.N.C.L.E. Transmitter and a The man from U.N.C.L.E. special equipment and please please bring me a football uniform.

P. S. and I want it blue and red. P. S. and a Walkie Talkie and a black 36 key piano.

Love
Brad Shain, Jr.

P. S. We will be at Kennett, M. O. P.S.

Dear Santa

I want a Suzy Home-maker if you don't want to bring me a washes. That's okey, but bring me a vacuum cleaner of Suzy home-maker. American Beauty dishes, and also pops and pans.

Please for all of this. I just want the mixer.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to "Nervous First Baseman", the kid whose mother went to all the Little League games and yelled obscenities at the manager.

When I was in high school I played right guard on the football team. I used to die a thousand deaths when my dad would come to see me play which was often. He was always juiced to the eyeballs and his language was terrible. He ran along the sidelines yelling advice and cussing out the players. Everyone laughed. I wanted to drop in a hole and stay there.

My coach was a wonderful person. When I wanted to quit he wouldn't let me. He explained that everybody in the world has something to put up with, and my problem was my dad.

I hope the Little Leaguer will just keep doing his best, and that he won't let his mother rob him of the fun of playing ball. If his coach is as wise as mine he will help him as my coach helped me. --MINNEAPOLIS

Dear Minn: Your coach taught you a valuable lesson that extends far beyond a ball game. I hope you let him know that you appreciated his counsel and his moral support. We often wait too long to say, "Thank you."

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my wonderful husband 12 years ago. For five years I dedicated myself to his memory. Although I had many invitations to go with eligible men I refused because I didn't want to offend my deceased husband's family.

Now the problem: Iam married to another wonderful man. My first husband's mother and sister include us in all their social plans and, of course, Jack and I must reciprocate. Without realizing it, they make frequent references to incidents involving me and my first husband. I know it is upsetting to Jack and I can understand his feelings.

I can't ask these people to please stop talking about the past. I'd rather die than hurt them. This situation is clearly damaging my marriage. What can I do? --NEED A SOLUTION

Dear Need: Cultivate other friends and cut back on the family get-togethers. Why don't you visit the women during the afternoon? It would let them know you still want to be friendly, and at the same time protect your husband's feelings.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has a quirk about "bargains." He thinks he is being economical, but often his tight streaks end up costing us money. He will buy almost anything if he has a coupon that will save him 7¢ on the purchase price.

We bought hospitalization insurance for the whole family a few months ago and he thinks that every time any of us has a cold or a backache we should go to the hospital. He says it is cheaper than calling a doctor who charges $20 for a house call and then prescribes $15 worth of medicine.

If you can suggest a cure for this overly frugal husband of mine I would appreciate it. --DARLING CLEMENTINE

Dear Darling: The coupon types are incurable, so give up. But the hospital routine is nonsense. No one should go to a hospital unless his doctor sends him. (For heaven's sake, don't buy any burial insurance!"

If you have trouble getting along with your parents...if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Prayer
From The Upper Room

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1966

Thy steadfast love, O Lord, extends to the heavens, thy faithfulness to the clouds. (Psalm 36:5, RSV)

PRAYER: Confronted by the fact that we cannot overcome our sins in our own strength, we turn to Thee, O God, seeking Thy mercy and forgiveness. We thank Thee that Thy mercy "is from everlasting to everlasting." In the name of Christ the Redeemer, we plead. Amen.

The hunting club composed of Will Sikes, Ranney Applegate, Grover Baker, E.C. Matthews, Wallace Applegate, E. A. Matthews, James Baker, Leonard McMullin, Steve Humphrey, Ralph Anderson, James Kevil, Lon Able, Moore Greer, Fred Schorle, Frank McAllister of Kennett and William Bergman of Cape Girardeau, and Jim, the duck picker, left Saturday night for their annual hunt.

The city council met in an adjourned meeting Monday night. Through some irregularities in conductiong the polls in the Fourth Ward Tuesday, November 14th, the election was declared invalid, and another special election had to be called for the purpose of voting on the $10,000 bond issue for street improvements and $5,000 bond issue for sewer improvements.

Oran - James Maddox departed Saturday for Minnesota to take charge of a railway depot in that state.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hunt, three miles south of town, a girl on December 11.

40 Years Ago
Nov. 25, 1926

Matthews - Miss Katherine Sackman has been ill the past week and unable to resume her work in the high school. Miss Rachel Shalsky has been substituting for Miss Sackman.

East Prairie - A large crowd attended the dedication of the new high school at this place Sunday. A very interesting program was furnished by local musicians and the glee clubs of the school. The address of the occasion was delivered by President Jos. A. Serena of the State Teachers College of Cape Girardeau.

Bud Martin received a severe cut about his eye Saturday night on the other side of Morehouse, when the car in which he was riding collided with another.

Joe Haw, captain of the Southeast Missouri Teachers College eleven, was named for a tackle position on the All-Star football team picked by sport writers for the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Tom Lasswell, Merlin Taylor, and Joe McCord of Sikeston have been appointed members of the Blue Jay, the annual publication of Westminster College at Fulton, it was announced Wednesday.

Mrs. M.A. Arterburn died at her home on Delmar Street Wednesday morning. She had suffered for a year with a throat ailment.

Mrs. C.J. Schwieter, mother of Raymond Schwieter of Sikeston, died at her home in Quincy, Ill., Tuesday after a lingering illness.

Either James H. Lewis or David H. Cline will be very tired at about noon Friday. The approach of the Charleston - Sikeston Thanksgiving Day game always intensifies feeling among fans, and this year it has produced a novel bet between two men. Mr. Cline believes the Bulldogs will win; Mr. Lewis backs the Blue Jays. So they made a bet, which they signed and sealed, and the loser must push the winner to Morehouse in a wheelbarrow Friday morning. The journey will be started from the Bijou at 10 o'clock.

Milton Daniels, 43 year old farmer, was in a critical condition at the Sikeston General Hospital Thursday as the result of having his right arm torn off when it was caught in a combine at the Wayne Bess farm on Route 2, five miles north of Miner Switch and about eight miles north of Sikeston.

Mrs. Joy Allen and Mrs. Mary Keaton have announced that they will open a new store, Jack and Jill Shop on November 30 at 112 South Kingshighway, the former location of the P.J. Auto Store.

David M. Rowe, Bob Foley, Billy Woehlecke, Charles French, Dick Tongate and Bob McCord, who are attending Westminster College at Fulton, will arrive home next week to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with their respective parents.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Nov. 25, the 329th day of 1966. There are 36 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1950, gales of almost hurricane strength, accompanied by rain and snow, swept 22 states from the East Coast to the Midwest causing some $400 million in damage and taking 278 lives.

On this date:

In 1834, Delmonico's Restaurant in New York announced that a meal of soup, tea or coffee and a half a pie would cost 12 cents.

In 1935, Andrew Carnegie, manufacturer and philanthropist, was born.

In 1922, Benito Mussolini was granted dictorial powers in Italy.

In 1940, the first large Selective Service groups entered the Army.

Ten years ago--Eight U.S. Air Force B52 bombers completed record, non-stop flights of up to 17,000 miles, demonstrating their ability to deliver nuclear bombs to any point in the world.

Five years ago-- President Kennedy granted an exclusive interview to the editor of the Soviet government newspaper "Izvestia," Alexei Adzhubei, a son-in-law of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. The interview was held at the president's Hyannis Port, Mass., home.

One year ago-- An explosion and fire in a Keokuk, Iowa, armory during a Thanksgiving eve square dance took 21 lives.

An identical burglary was committed at the store last August. The loss was $11 at that time.

Build Huge Nests

Ospreys, or sea hawks, build nests several feet in diameter. They return to these nests year after year, so they reinforce them with fresh sticks as a buttress against winter storms before migrating south. Smaller birds sometimes make their own homes in the lower portion of the bulky nests.

MORE WHOLESOME MEAT FOR U.S. CONSUMERS IS AIM OF PROPOSED INSPECTION RULE.

To improve efforts at keeping unwholesome meat from America's tables, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is proposing to tighten Federal meat inspection regulations.

A proposed amendment to the Federal Meat Inspection Act--which assures consumers of a wholesome meat supply--would prohibit meat from animals which died other than by slaughter from being prepared for human food.

Under the law, meat from animals which arrive dead or die on the premises of a Federally inspected meat packing plant cannot be prepared for human food. They are not permitted into the edible processing areas of such plants.

However, regulations do not cover disposal of such animals. Carcasses could be removed and sent to other locations where they might get into human food channels.

Suggested regulations would provide for unfit carcasses to be destroyed for food purposes under the supervision of a Federal meat inspector. These inspectors, part of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, carry out all regulations of the Meat Inspection Act through their examination of livestock for distribution in interstate or foreign commerce before, during and after slaughter.

GOD'S POOR, WHO CANNOT WAIT

We must discard the most dangerous myth concerning the poor: that the best way to help them is to make life uncomfortable for them, so that they will then in some way be forced to self-support. We need to act on the basis of what we know of the human condition: that people grow not through harassment, or through the purposeful imposition of crisis after crisis in their daily lives, but rather through a provision of opportunities throughout the life cycle for the kinds of constructive human relationships that alone can offer a full, creative life for all.

HOTEL CONVENIENCES ARE MOVING INTO YOUR KITCHEN

Many hotel and motel rooms now feature automatic ice-making machines or instant hot and ice-water dispensers for the convenience of guests. With so many Americans traveling these days, people are exposed to these little comforts, creating a demand for them for the home, the Plumbing-Heating - Cooling Information Bureau says. Another device that's growing in popularity is the plumbed-in coffee-maker.
